Nat Neff tried to convince me that a chorus of bullfrogs is holding an eisteddfod in the vicinity of the proposed Prado dam. Even went so far as to give me a list of the selections, chromatic proficiency, impersario, and names of the croakers. It's a long time since I've heard a bullfrog sing. Most of them are a few jumps ahead of me. However, Nat ought to know his frogs. His work gives him the amphibian touch.

Well, if I had had a cellophane coat I could have saved fifty cents. As it is the sutorium gets my pants.

And then a good friend reminds me by invitation that it won't be long now until Christmas, and he is expecting me under the same circumstances which prevailed last year, with one exception. Inasmuch as we both agreed on the exception, I shall accept with bells, and all the other holiday accessories.

Newspaper heading: "Dead Man Back Home." Another one of those "greatly exaggerated" Mark Twain stories.

And then there was the young lady who inquired about a certain incident which reached her receptive auricle long before the newspapers were delivered. Which proves that gossip travels fast, and truth much slower.

We now have 11 more shopping days until Christmas. That isn't news. It's just a warning.

Of course your grandson wouldn't do a thing like this but Joe Smith's grandson did—leave a box lying on the walk so it would be in your way when it came time to take the garbage pail to the curb. So in the pale moonlight Joe makes a half somersault which, according to my calculations, would land one on his head, as it came near doing it in this case. Joe has a badly wrenched shoulder to prove something happened. For a few days some one can cut his beef steak.

I know, you are expecting me to say something about the rain, and I'm not going to do it.

Frank Moore, in the Yorba Linda sector, tells me he has lemons as big as avocados, and wants to prove it. So he says come out and he will show me. Coming from Missouri, Frank thinks he is in an invulnerable position. He is watching the lemon crop with both interest and profit, and waiting for the oil companies to tell him they believe he has some black gold under his lemon trees, and they want it.

City official trying to cover three meetings same night, concludes that for $25 per month the civic demands are entirely out of proportion to the compensation.

Talked with a shopper who said he had picked out his Christmas present, but that it did not necessarily follow he would get it. Sometimes you can get things by indirection. Have a friend do your talking by remote control. I've often found out what the other fellow wanted by sending a decoy.

Two weeks from today Santa Claus will go into the distribution business. The following Monday he will open up an exchange. But I'll keep my tie, regardless.

And may I say a word for the business men of Santa Ana who have invested heavily in holiday goods, who pay taxes, who support every civic program, who reinvest their money of the home town, who are here today and tomorrow and the day after ready to make adjustments if desired, who give you credit and help you in many ways. Oh, what a place it is to say in the first place that they are entitled to your patronage. Business will be better if you trade at home. It's an old and trite saying, but one hard to disprove.

Too many people do not find out that dishonesty does not pay until after they have committed a theft.

RAINS STILL FALL ON SOUTHLAND

Dam Bursts, Floods California City

Gentle rains continued to lave the Sunny Southland, and a grateful Orange county, today.

Total precipitation in Santa Ana was increased to .40 of an inch overnight, by an additional .16 added to yesterday's drizzle.

North Orange county continued to lead the parade in total number of inches, varying from .68 at Villa Park to .61 at Orange.

.63 at Fullerton, .66 at Anaheim.

Along the coast precipitation ranged from .61 at Huntington Beach to .39 at Newport.

Predictions were for continued cloudiness and light rain.

ALTAURA, Calif. (AP)—Two surgical operations were under way when the Pine Creek reservoir collapsed and loosed a flood of water here today.

The water gradually rose in the Modoc County hospital until the doctors stood in two feet of it. But they went right ahead and finished the operations.

tation had come to the section in the last 48 hours the mark still was short of season figures for 1936.

Possibility of a letup by tomorrow was seen in the official forecast for occasional rain and snow in the mountains Sunday.

Largest fall for the storm was recorded at Santa Barbara, where 2.13 inches had been recorded at 8 a. m. Imperial Valley, however, still had received no benefit from the storm which broke the long-drawn drought for this section in 22 years.

Storm warnings along the Southern California coast continued today.

ACCUSE MOTHER OF MURDER

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—A mother of six children, Mrs. Anna McDole, 40, was held by police today on suspicion of murder in connection with the death of a daughter, Eileen, 15, last Oct. 31.

Separated from her husband, who is now a patient at the soldiers' home in Sateville, Mrs. McDole and her other five children had managed to eke out an existence with the aid of two shaggy milk goats, a dozen hens and as many pigeons, officers said.

The children clung to her and wept as police led her away.

A chemical analysis of Eileen's stomach indicated she had been poisoned and a coroner's jury yesterday returned an open verdict.

Mrs. McDole was quoted by Detective Luet, Thad F. Brown as saying the girl had suffered convulsions at intervals for many years and she thought it was another such attack when Eileen became ill last October.

"She ate nothing but some pigeon soup the night she took ill," said Mrs. McDole. I was up with her several times during the night. The next day she seemed better, but that night relapsed. The next morning I found her dead in bed."

Baby Bride Goes To School on Alimony Payments

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Freed from marital ties, Mrs. Catherine J. Anagnos, a bride at 14 and a mother today at 16, is going back to school.

She obtained a divorce yesterday and was awarded $25 a month alimony from her husband, Thomas Anagnos, 25, a truck driver.

"You should be in hair ribbons and running around on roller skates instead of in domestic relations court," Superior Judge Goodwin Knight said in giving her the divorce.

Pantie Theft Sets Police Looking For Harem

Newport Beach police are looking for a man with a harem.

Or, anyway, for a man who last night stole 50 pair of silk and rayon ladies' pants.

Milton Friedman, 742 Shell street, Los Angeles, told Newport officers last night that while his car was parked in front of a harbor cafe, last night the following items, in addition to the 50 pairs of filmy things, were stolen:

Four pair silk pajama suits.

Ten silk nightgowns.

Eight rayon nightgowns.

Three satin blouse-cats.

One camel's hair overcoat.

One black overnight bag, containing an electric razor, one toilet kit, pajamas, slippers, shirts, a ladies' robe, slips, more underwear and toilet articles.

DEATH VILLA QUIZ WIDENS

PARIS. (AP)—Police today ordered a whole half acre of wooded ground around the "death" villa at St. Cloud spaded up in search for four more possible victims of Eugene Weidmann, confessed slayer of the American dancer, Jean De Koven, and four men.

They expressed fears that a second American, an unidentified man, might have been snared in the web of a murder for profit syndicate of which Weidmann said he was the expert in killing, and they sought light on three women whose identities and fate still are a mystery.

Workmen dug in the grounds of the villa where Miss De Koven's body was found Thursday to determine whether the three women, known only as "Jeannine," "Caroline," and "Josephine," also had been killed and buried there.

The names or monograms of the three were found embroidered on handkerchiefs, clothing and even letters and postcards discovered in Weidmann's lair.

Four cases of women's effects were found in the villa. Police worked on the belief that one of the victims was a blonde seen frequently in the company of the syndicate. No clue to her whereabouts has been found.

Two men said a woman sought as members of the syndicate surrendered to the police yesterday for questioning, and a charge of complicity of murder was placed against Roger Million, supposed head of the group, and his woman companion, Brunette Colette Tricot. Jean Le Blanc was held on an open charge.

SPECIAL COP GETS IN JAM

Drunk charges and a possible complaint faced Larry Boeker, company policeman for the Lockheed Aircraft corporation of Burbank, today following his asserted escape from deputy sheriffs after being arrested in Bolsa early this week.

Boeker was brought back to Orange county jail today by Lockheed police after a communication had been sent to the Burbank plant by Sheriff Logan Jackson.

Boeker was arrested at Sully's cafe in Bolsa by Deputy Sheriffs Musick and John Gilmore, but he slipped out of the officers' car when a group of companions milled around the car and reportedly started a minor brawl.

Curse Is Nothing To "Uncle Dan"

"Baloney!" remarked Dan Mulherron, WPA director of construction projects in Orange county after reading for the first time today the story published in The Journal concerning the curse placed on the WPA anthropological project in this county.

"We don't think anything of walking under ladders and would break mirrors," added WPA Engineer Robert W. Phelps. "If we didn't have to use the mirrors,"

UNION MEN ACCUSED BY VICTIM

Assault Climaxes Threats, Lake Says

A beating at the hands of a union "strong-arm" man was charged today by Willard Lake, Santa Ana trucking contractor, as the climax to six weeks of what he termed threats by labor organizers when he refused to join a union.

Officers were seeking a bulky, powerful man who, Lake claims, beat him yesterday while two teamsters' union officials stood by. A "John Doe" warrant, charging assault, was issued after Lake told his story to Deputy Dist. Atty. Warrent Shutz.

Lake was nursing a bad gash across his forehead which he says he sustained when the big stranger struck him from the side, knocking him to the gravel behind the teamsters' union headquarters, 108 Cypress avenue.

T. H. Jones, secretary, and R. G. "Tiny" Mullendore, business agent of the union, were talking with him, Lake said.

When he turned his head to speak to one of them, the big man appeared and drove a huge fist into his jaw, he continued.

"I got up and threw my coat in the car," said Lake. "They were going back into the headquarters. I told them that if they'd come out and fight like men I'd whip all three of them."

"They went back into the office, and as I reached down for my pencils which fell out when I was knocked down, I told them I guessed I wouldn't join any union."

Lake went to the union headquarters he told officers, after his son, Willard Jr., told him to join the union or else. This occurred earlier in the day at the California rock plant, Lake said. His son, he told officers, identified the man who contacted him as Dan Kelly, labor organizer.

FIND 31 DEAD IN R. R. WRECK

CASTLEBARY, Scotland. (AP)—haggard rescue workers, hampered by a swirling snowstorm, dug into the battered wreckage of two passenger trains today for additional victims of Britain's worst railway disaster in 22 years.

Thirty-one bodies already had been dragged out of the twisted debris, and three others were believed still pinned within. Of the 92 persons injured, 25 were in condition serious enough for hospitalization.

Five of the recovered dead were women and one was a child.

A crack Scottish express, speeding through blinding snow from Edinburgh to Glasgow just after dark yesterday, ripped into the rear of another train which had stopped on the main line tracks. The first two cars of the express were splintered and its locomotive ploughed up an embankment.

Silence Sheriff Jackson's Answer

Significant silence was Sheriff Logan Jackson's only answer today to eight questions asked him by The Journal editorially yesterday.

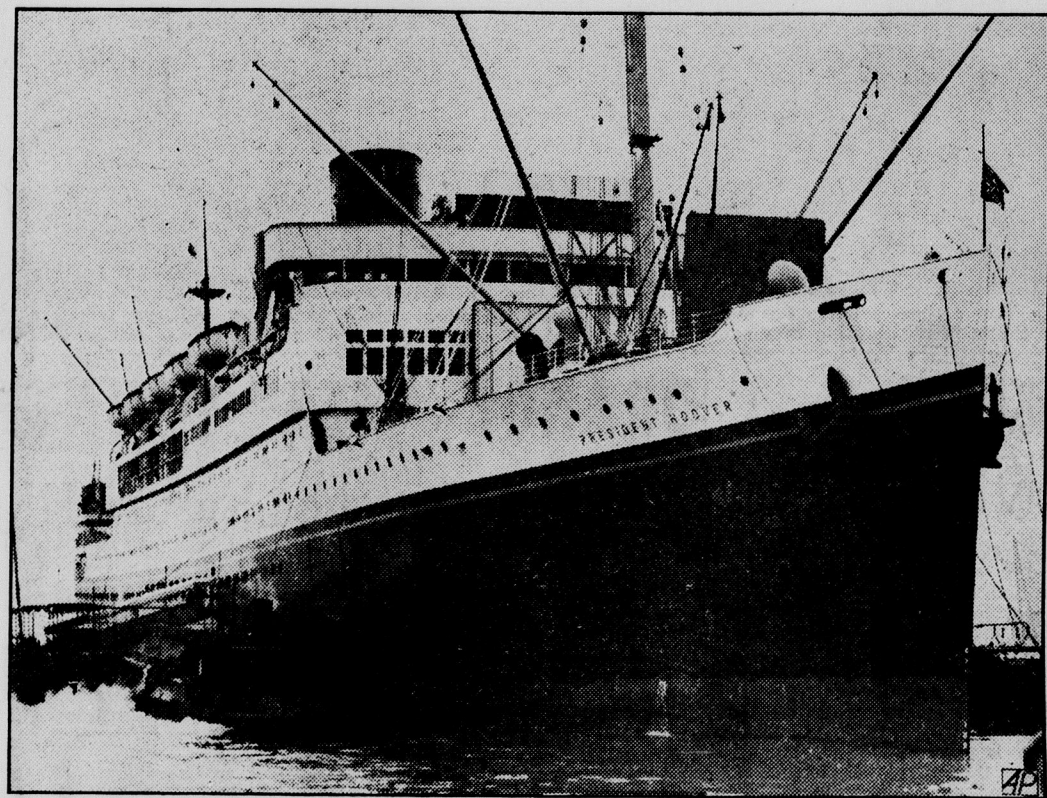

The questions included: "Why is it you are trying so hard to 'sue down' public discussion of the county fee matter?"

"Is it true, as has been reported, that including your salary of $2892 and fees, you have been drawing down some $15,000 to $20,000 a year?"

"Why not turn them back to the public treasury even though technically you are entitled to keep them?"

A view of the fee situation in California shows that in the early days of the state, practically all counties were sparsely populated and not rich enough to pay their

KIDS THROG BROADWAY

More than a thousand youngsters, their arms filled with last year's Teddy Bears, canned beans, old clothes and outgrown toys, crowded into the Broadway theater this morning for the annual P.T.A. Journal Santa Claus party.

The morning was one long shout of glee, as Jane Withers, Mickey Mouse and Foxy Grandpa disported for the sake of charity on the screen.

A huge pile of gifts, to be distributed to needy families through the Parent-Teachers association, grew under the large Christmas tree in the theater lobby as the year's most enthusiastic audience filed to its seats.

In charge of the affair was Mrs. Floyd Mitchell, P.T.A. president, and Mrs. R. Dean Smiley, welfare chairman, assisted by Mrs. E. D. Froeschle and Mrs. Herbert Hildebrand, committeewoman.

Manager George King of the Broadway and the Fox theaters operated in arranging for the party.

HEATER BURNS KILL WOMAN

First, second and third degree burns resulted in the death late last night of Mrs. Julia Estrada, 58, 2114 W. Fifth street.

The burns occurred Thursday afternoon when Mrs. Estrada's clothes caught fire from a radiating heater. She hovered between life and death for 16 hours in Orange county hospital, although the burns covered two-thirds of her body.

'Order' Vote For Russians

MOSCOW. (AP)—Russian citizens were reminded for the last time today that they were expected to vote tomorrow for a supreme Soviet in elections that will amount to little more than ratification of unopposed nominees.

Pravda, the Communist party organ, said 90,000,000 citizens were expected to vote in the elections, the first in the Soviet. A full turnout was expected because the names of voters will be checked off on a list of all qualified to vote.

A vote for any candidate is a vote for Joseph Stalin, Russia's No. 1 man.

SHIPS SPEED TO AID LINER

Reported leaking badly and "pounding heavily," the Dollar liner President Hoover (above), still was aground today off the coast of Formosa. More than 650 passengers had been removed to safety on the island of Hishoto.

BET STORES IN BALANCE

Future action against turf stores in five Orange county cities was in the balance in superior court here today. Arguments of counsel in the application of the Fullerton betting agency for an injunction against city interference was present, but did not argue. City Attorney Raymond Thompson of Fullerton and his assistant, Lloyd Verry, led the legal battery appearing in defense of the ordinance. Other city attorneys who argued the motion were George Holden of Anaheim, Lew Blodgett of Santa Ana, and Gordon Richmond of Orange. Ray Overacker, Huntington Beach city attorney, man arguing that cities have no right to legislate on race betting and Marks contending that the emergency clause in the Fullerton anti-betting ordinance is invalid.

MANILA. (AP)—Pounded by waves and reported leaking badly, the trans-Pacific liner President Hoover was feared to be in a desperate condition today after several hundred passengers had been rescued from the $8,000,000 vessel.

Capt. E. Stepbach, master of the German freighter Preussen, first ship to reach the Hoover after she went aground early this morning on reefs of a small island near Formosa, messaged the first definite word of the liner's plight.

The German captain, in a message to the Associated Press here, said the Hoover was "bumping heavily" on the reef and "leaking badly forward."

LANDED ON ISLAND
Only a skeleton crew remained aboard the liner, whose position is approximately 500 miles from Manila, the passengers and most of the crew had been removed to the island.

Three United States destroyers, streaking northward from Manila, the liner Empress of Asia and two tugs from Formosa were expected to reach the grounded ship late tonight.

Captain Stepbach's message said: "We arrived at Hoover's position at 1:30 a. m., Saturday (12:30 p. m., Friday, eastern standard time). So far, as could be seen, ship in bad position on rocks northwest side Hishoto island. On request stood by until daylight ready to take passengers over and make attempt at towing off."

Jail 'Unfit' for Human Use, Claim

HOLLISTER. (AP)—San Benito county's 62-year-old jail was officially reported "unfit for human habitation" and declared to offer "one of the most dangerous conditions in California."

Samuel S. Williams, chief jail inspector of California, said the structure violated state health and housing laws and was a menace to the life and health of its inmates and keepers, and even to children attending a school across the street.

SUPERVISORS REFUSE PAY DAY ADVANCE

Teachers' Money Held Up Till Jan. 1

A quarter-million dollars was loaned to Orange county teachers' Christmas trade today. Teachers in schools of the county, for the past 17 years given their December pay checks before Christmas, this year must wait until Jan. 1, as a result of the schools-supervisors' argument over use of idle money in the county treasury.

FUNDS SHORT
This year, because school funds are short and have been replenished only to a slight extent by loans from the county, salaries will not be paid until Jan. 1.

Orders for the change in policy this year came from County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson, who has battled with supervisors several times to get "loans" for school district funds.

TOTAL $266,000
Monthly school payrolls total about $266,000, mostly for teachers and administrative officials whose work for the month ends the week before Christmas. Employees who work during the vacation such as janitors and gardeners, are never paid until the regular payday on the first of the month; but teachers and administrators have been given their checks early, to encourage Christmas shopping.

Lack of funds in school district accounts was the center of a lively battle last August, when school heads were refused loans which customarily have been made, on grounds the county might need all available money. Some school districts were forced to register warrants to pay their bills, until finally two transfers of funds were made by supervisors to carry the schools through the "dry period" until taxes began coming in this month.

NEW PROTON IS DISCOVERED

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The Carnegie institution of Washington reported today that scientists have discovered at least one new particle of matter and have uncovered evidence that another exists.

Other known particles, such as electrons and neutrons, are bound up electrically to make up atoms. The atoms combine to form molecules and the molecules are arranged into various forms to make human tissue cells, rocks, wood and all other things.

The first of the particles is probably a "negative proton," reported Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Nobel physicist of the California Institute of Technology, who made the studies under a Carnegie institution grant.

The proton is one of the fundamental building blocks of all matter in the universe and carries a positive electrical charge. Other known particles, such as electrons and neutrons, are bound up electrically to make up atoms. The atoms combine to form molecules and the molecules are arranged into various forms to make human tissue cells, rocks, wood and all other things.

ESTIMATE ON RELIEF HELD UP
WASHINGTON. (AP)—Congressional leaders said today that recession-created uncertainties would make it impossible for President Roosevelt to estimate next year's relief needs when he makes the annual budget forecasts in January.

They said the President would delay estimating relief outlays until March in order to determine the seriousness of the present business slump.

Harry Hopkins, the WPA administrator, announced Thursday relief rolls would be increased temporarily by 350,000 persons. He said, however, that this expanded program could be continued for a time within the limits of the existing $1,500,000 relief appropriation.

Wood Makes Good, But Human Fly Has Feet of Clay!

Thousands gaped open-mouthed at the sight of Charley Wood, muscles bulging, jaw fixed, worming his way up the side of the Otis building this morning.

The human fly made the ascent and descent without incident. And none of the crowd knew that Wood was introduced at the Orange County Athletic club this week, attempted to climb two feet into the ring, and fell flat!

Truckman Dies Under Boulder

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (AP)—A gigantic boulder loosened by rain in the Columbia river gorge hurled a Portland-Pendleton freight truck and trailer over a 700-foot cliff near Mosier tunnel early today and instantly killed Lowell Weimer, 28, of Portland, the driver.

The truck, trailer and cargo were broken to bits on the railroad tracks. The wreckage carried away a section of the Union Pacific railroad signal system. Debris was scattered over an area of 800 feet.

JAPAN STARTS MOVE TO TAKE OVER NORTH CHINA GOVERNMENT

DEFENDERS OF NANKING STILL HOLD

Invaders May Revive Republican Regime

PEIPING, China. (AP)—Restoration of the former republican national Chinese government in North China by the Japanese army within a few days was forecast today by well informed Chinese sources.

The Japanese were not as explicit but they freely predicted that there would be "a new government very soon."

The revived republican government, Chinese believed, might be recognized by Tokyo as the legitimate regime for all China because of the severance of relations between Tokyo and the Nanking government.

Chinese here viewed the prospect gloomily, calling it "a second Manchoukuo" and predicting stringent Japanese control.

Definite developments were expected to await the capture of Nanking and the return from Tokyo, probably tomorrow, of Colonel Nemoto, local Japanese military mission chief. It was believed he would bring back the Japanese war office's decision on North China plans.

NIPPON ATTACK ON NANKING CONTINUES

SHANGHAI. (AP)—While Japanese troops still pounded Nanking's walls and five gates tonight, another Japanese column captured the important river port, Wuhu, 60 miles up the Yangtze from the capital.

Japanese army commanders, who reported the capture of Wuhu, said occupation of the city would make impossible a Chinese retreat from Nanking along the south bank of the Yangtze.

They said it also would put Japan's forces in an advantageous position for a march on Hankow whenever a campaign was ordered against the city, farther up the Yangtze, where the Chinese have shifted their seat of government.

USE TANKS

Capture of Wuhu came while Japanese tanks, charging behind lines of tanks, were storming Nanking in a general attack. It followed reports that the Japanese had captured Chinkiang, 40 miles east of Nanking, and Taipei, midway between the capital and Wuhu.

With fighting reported on the north bank of the Yangtze, fear was felt for the safety of two American missionaries, B. F. Stamps of Huntington, W. Va., and Richmond, Va., and Mary Demerest of Emerson, N. J.

They were at Yangchow, near Chinkiang, and had not been heard from for two weeks.

AIR ATTACK

The Japanese spokesman announced that a heavy air attack had been made on the Fakhsien forts at Nanking, charging no other announcements, however, concerning the Nanking fighting.

A battle was said still to be in progress at the mid-river Golden Island forts and the forts opposite Chinkiang.

SHELLS START FIRES IN NANKING DISTRICT

ABOARD U. S. S. PANAY, Nanking Harbor, (Delayed) (AP)—Several shells fell into the Hsiakwan district, near Nanking's railway station, and started a group of fires tonight while Japanese warships were shelling defenses on the city hill.

The British-owned Bridge house, oldest foreign-owned hotel in China's abandoned capital, was destroyed by flames.

Gunfire was heard from aboard this United States gunboat while the thunder of several terrific explosions roared from down river. Three Japanese gunboats and several mine sweepers were known to have passed the Kiangyin boom, below Nanking, but they must break through two other booms before reaching the city to join the bombardment.

Hens Won't Lay--And Season Here!

Prospects of a brisk demand for turkeys for Christmas and New Year's was voiced at a turkey meeting held at Riverside last night.

The sales of turkeys during the Thanksgiving holidays as a whole are reported to have been satisfactory. Producers in Southern California are reported to have fewer hens laying eggs than in the past. William Cory of the county farm advisory board and two other Santa Ana residents attended the meeting.

DRIVERS UNHURT

Both drivers escaped injury in an auto accident on Euclid avenue in Garden Grove late yesterday. The cars involved in the collision were driven by Floyd B. Reiley, 38, North Long Beach, and Fay Thomas Jarrett, 30, 533 Acacia street, Garden Grove.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

It is a newspaper men's organization which offers satirical skits about public officials, from which the President is not immune. Seems to occur to me that something like an informal grid is going on in Orange county, but I could be wrong.

It is estimated that in eight years there will be one automobile for every man, woman and child in the state. That means the pedestrians' chances are becoming less and less.

Eddie Marble is to lead the "Jingle Bells" singing for the Breakfast club Christmas party. He conducted a rehearsal last week with reasonably satisfactory results. He located a few sour notes, and some falsetto tenors, an occasional tenement base, and a few other minor chromatic infractions, but he thinks he can smooth them out before the holiday test. If he don't it will be too late to make any corrections, or get substitutes.

Both Sides Win In Spain War

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier. (AP)—Victories in air battles over the Aragon front were reported today by both the Spanish insurgents and government forces.

Official dispatches from General Francisco Franco's headquarters said the insurgents' planes in the Zaragoza sector yesterday brought down 20 government planes. The insurgents said they lost but one ship.

The government said insurgent planes were shot down in a large scale encounter in the Bujaraloz region. The government reported it lost only one plane.

CEREMONY POSTPONED

Postponement of initiation ceremonies scheduled Monday night by the Native Daughters of the Golden West, was announced today because of the illness of Mrs. Arthur Edwards, president, although the meeting will be held as usual. A Christmas party planned by the organization Tuesday at the Edwards' home was also cancelled.

MEDICO AMAZED

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Imagine Dr. Walter Albert's surprise when he picked up his favorite newspaper to find his name listed in the official death list. A check showed a funeral parlor had listed the doctor's name instead of that of his patient.

Father Faces Life in Jail for Refusal to Allow Vaccination

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP)—Jack March, South Mountain farm hand, faced a 50-day jail sentence today, for stubbornly refusing to have his son vaccinated.

March was taken from jail last night long enough to appear before Justice of the Peace William Dosh for his 56th hearing. Dosh tacked on another five days to March's sentence.

The farmer has been in prison 27 days under a string of sentences imposed five days at a time by Dosh for each day that March keeps his son, Eugene, out of school.

Dist. Atty. J. Boyd Landis said the farmer "stands a very good chance of serving a life sentence unless he complies with the school code."

ORANGE "TEST" COUNTY Aged Orange Resident Dies

Average Incomes Figure High

(This is the first in a series of three articles presenting to you the average Orange county family, its income and expenditures, as of today. The figures contained are the result of months of research by the bureau of home economics, U. S. department of agriculture, under a WPA project. For the purpose of the survey, Orange county was selected as "typical" of both village and rural communities, although several other counties contributed to final results.—The Editor.)

Orange county incomes are considerably higher than those in other parts of the nation.

More than half of the self-supporting families here receive annual incomes of $1500 or over. The average income of families able to maintain themselves without recourse to relief is $1750. The average income of all families interviewed during this survey is $2000 less, or $1550.

Of the families interviewed, those whose chief earnings come from wage-earner activities account for 57 per cent of the non-relief families. More than half the remainder are business and professional workers' families. The balance are in clerical and other occupations.

While families of wage earners thus far are more than twice as numerous as those in any other occupational group, their average income is approximately $1200 lower than that received by families of business and professional workers.

Police Teletype To Be Speeded

Mechanization and speeding up of the state police teletype system will be inaugurated Jan. 1, it was learned at the sheriff's office today.

Mechanical tickers with a minimum speed of 60 words a minute will be installed to replace the present 40-word machine, and the speed will be controlled by a tape rather than by hand operators. Because of a lack of trouble in police teletypes during the past year, officials plan to cut costs by eliminating stand-by machines in local law enforcement agencies throughout the state.

'DOLLY' BACK AGAIN Jail 'Regular' Home for Xmas

Orange county will entertain Alger R. "Dolly" Gray again this Christmas. It has become a tradition.

Until today it appeared that Dolly Gray, a guest at the county jail every Christmas for the past 11 years, planned to decline the county's hospitality this season.

But Christmas-in-jail is too much of a habit to be broken overnight—and so is the consumption of intoxicants.

Dolly's been out of jail for three months—his longest stretch of freedom in more than a decade. He stopped off the wagon for just one little nip yesterday, though, and the nip led to a few huskier swigs.

Now he's back in the clink for 30 days. He was sentenced a year, but Justice of the Peace Kenneth E. Morrison suspended 11 months. So Dolly will have another chance, starting Jan. 11.

Last time Dolly Gray appeared before Judge Morrison he pleaded for freedom so he could prove he finally had become a teetotaler.

He turned over a new leaf, and justice court attendants all were pulling for him.

For the first time since he was a child, Dolly Gray, 43, went to church—and he even refused to drink wine at communion.

But now he's come home for the holidays.

AGED ORANGE RESIDENT DIES

ORANGE.—Samuel P. Kane, 91, died this morning at his home, 413 N. Batavian street. Funeral services will be held at the C. W. Coffey funeral chapel next Monday at 2 p. m. with interment at Sarrhaven cemetery.

Mr. Kane, who had been a resident of this community during the last 24 years, was a member of the G. A. R., the Orange Presbyterian church and the Men's Bible class.

Following the Civil war, Mr. Kane became a sea captain on a merchant vessel which he owned, making numerous trips to Great Britain and Ireland with the home port of the ship at Darien, Ga. In 1888 he was awarded a chronometer by the British government for performing a heroic rescue of several men at sea.

He leaves a son, Howard Kane of Memphis, Tenn., a grandson, Clarence Corcoran of Orange and six other grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

7 More Dogs Die In Rabies Drive

Seven more dogs were picked up during the week by authorities at La Habra in the drive to halt further spread of rabies, bringing the total to 27 animals.

Of the 27 animals impounded all but two have been disposed of. All of them are believed by La Habra authorities to have been bitten by a stray police dog ten days ago which, after being killed, was found to be suffering from the disease.

Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, stated no La Habra residents have been arrested for failure to comply with the 90-day quarantine of dogs in that community since it was established.

ued to fly, keeping small craft in port.

Air traffic on all but the American Airways remained at a standstill. This line, operating through southern Arizona and Texas to the east, unloaded passengers at Palm Springs, where the sun was shining, and brought them to Los Angeles by automobile.

Eight traffic deaths were reported during the storm period, with obscured vision due to rain and slippery streets and highways contributing factors.

COAST GUARD TO AID FLOODED

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—Coast Guard officials announced today they were making preparations today to send a 160 foot vessel up the Sacramento river to the flood area to render assistance.

A number of surf boats will be taken along for operations in the flood region.

The coast guard headquarters also announced it had received word from its portable radio truck that the town of Willits in Mendocino county was isolated.

WHOLE WORLD IN GRIP OF WINTER

(By The Associated Press)

While rescue parties threaded their way through huge snowdrifts north of Buffalo, N. Y., to aid isolated communities, the south, in the grip of sub-freezing weather all week, was promised relief from the cold Saturday.

Pennsylvania counted 14 dead in a continuing cold wave, and in the west coast hundreds homeless as a result of floods. The entire Pacific Coast was whipped by gales with the fertile Sacramento valley of California suffering a record crop damage.

In Montana rain, sleet and snow storms halted all air traffic with heavy snow storms reported in Utah and Southern Idaho.

Haggard rescue workers in Castileary, Scotland, hampered by a swirling snowstorm, dug into the battered wreckage of two additional trains seeking additional victims Britain's worst railway disaster in 22 years. Thirty-one bodies already had been taken from the wreck of the Scottish Express which had ripped into the rear of another train during a blinding snowstorm Friday.

Smudge fires burned in the Florida citrus groves and will require a again tonight, the weather bureau reported.

WPA Gets $25,000 To Buy Materials

Approximately $25,000 will be received by the WPA for materials to be used in projects during the months of January, February and March, according to Dan Mulherson, director.

"This is about a third of what it was last year," Mulherson commented. He said the money received is on a basis of five dollars per man month. Last year $17 per man month was spent on materials.

AID SPEEDS TO HOOVER

Hoover's captain decided to land passengers, crew on island. Sounding showed impossible towing off. His message did not make clear whether it would be possible for the liner to be towed off at all, or whether it was merely impossible for the German craft to free the Dollar ship.

PASSENGERS ABOARD DOOMED SHIP TOLD

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—Names of some 200 passengers on the liner President Hoover when it sailed from here Nov. 22 for the Orient were listed today by the Dollar Steamship company, which pointed out, however, that some may have left the vessel at other ports of call before it went aground near Formosa.

The list available here included: Leon Britton, general manager of RKO pictures in the Orient, and Mrs. Britton.

Joseph E. Cornwall, Hollywood. Mrs. Robert H. Cromwell, Hollywood.

Don F. Bellam, Hollywood. Robert Janda, Pasadena.

BOYCOTTS FAVORED IN LABOR STRIFE

Resolutions passed at the Fruit Growers and Farmers convention at San Jose this week favoring a farmer boycott against cities excluding part of the farmers' produce and asking that labor unions be responsible for the acts of their members, received applause by the delegates present, according to County Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs, who today returned from the session.

It was pointed out that on occasions in the past certain farmers' products have been excluded from entering certain cities because of agreements with labor unions in the municipalities.

The delegates went on record as favoring laws making labor unions responsible for their acts and the individual acts of their members.

Another resolution objected to the railroad differential rate and favored a return to the blanket rate system.

The convention expressed the view through another resolution that highways and docks be kept open to the public irrespective of labor disputes.

Indorsement of continuation of the intercoastal steamship subsidy was the substance of another one of the 25 resolutions gaining passage. Suggestion was made the federal government compensate owners of diminishing return orchards for removal of same.

Shall One Man Dictate Local School Books?

Are Santa Ana parents willing to submit to a dictatorship over local school books by one individual who has a grudge against public education?

Or will they stand behind Superintendent Henderson, the school board and the teachers in the right of this community and its duly chosen representatives to select the texts that are deemed best by unbiased experts?

Bible for Every Classroom, Plan

"Religion made easy" beckoned 464 Buena Park youngsters today—but the school board ruled they'd have to go after it if they wanted it.
An ambitious Bible salesman wanted to put one of the Bibles in every classroom. The board was interested, but balked at the expense.
It bought one Bible, which now rests in the reference room of the school library.

NORTH COUNTY SCHOOLS ANNOUNCE XMAS FESTIVITIES

HUNDREDS IN HOLIDAY OBSERVANCE

Students Plan Special Programs

The stories of Christmas will be given in song, in drama, in pantomime, and in tableau by the thousands of children in the schools of the northern part of Orange county next week.

These programs open as early as Monday afternoon when the children of the Ford school in Fullerton Elementary district present their stories in song and recitation at a school P-T. A. meeting at the school. Ray E. Green is district superintendent.

Continuing through the week in Fullerton are to be the individual room programs of the Chapman school on the closing day, while the children of the Wilshire school will present "Christmas in Story and Song," first at 6:45 and again at 8:10 p. m. at their auditorium, under the direction of Miss Wilma Doig.

For the P-T. A. of the Maple school, the children will present "Why the Chimes Rang" for the P-T. A. Thursday afternoon. Miss Margaret Swan, who also trained the Ford school children, is in charge.

The Valencia school, like the Chapman school, will have room parties the last day before the Yuletide vacation.

Fullerton District Junior college and Union High school, with Miss Dorothy Newton and Mrs. Esther Litchfield in charge, assisted by the music departments of the schools, will present their annual Christmas offering, a dramatization, with many songs, of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol." This will be offered on the afternoon of the 15th at 2:45, on the evening of Dec. 16, at 8, and again on Friday, Dec. 16, at 2:45 p. m., to accommodate the crowds that usually attend this program.

At Placentia, in the Unified district, the groups from the Valencia High school and the Bradford school will join in giving one program Thursday night, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Arnold. More than 400 children will join in presenting the Christmas story in pantomime, and in American carols.

The other schools, the Richfield at night on Wednesday, where the Christmas tree will be lighted and a program offered, will consummate the work with parties in rooms on Friday. The Bradford avenue P-T. A. will give the children of that school a party. Mrs. Gladys Koutal is principal of Richfield.

The children at La Jolla will give a program at the school on Thursday afternoon. Following the program, parents will serve refreshments. Miss Marion Wolfe, a teacher, wrote the sketch for the play.

The Chapman school will have room programs and treats Friday afternoon, according to Mrs. G. C. Twombly, principal.

The children at the Buena Park Lindbergh school presented their program for the P-T. A. Thursday night. Mrs. Charles Baumstark presided at the meeting, and Miss Mabel Looney, principal, and Miss Nina Dueden, in charge of music, were in charge. Next Thursday, a program will be given in the evening at the Grand Avenue school P-T. A. meeting, according to announcement of Roland Upton, principal of the schools.

On Friday, at 8 p. m. at the Brea-Olinda school auditorium, "Yuletide Memories" will be presented by the glee clubs, and orchestra, as part of the program, with another part of solos and other music as the annual offering of the Brea-Olinda High school. Miss L. Chapman directs. Carl Harvey is principal.

The children of the Laurel school and the Brea grammar school will have programs and parties Friday, and an extra program of carols and plans will be presented by the pupils at the Wednesday meeting of the P-T. A. At La Habra, R. Brower, super-

TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. KOB

Mrs. Cora Smith, secretary of the Garden Grove Townsend Club No. 1 writes this column concerning a pot-luck dinner which will be held at 7:30 next Monday evening in the American Legion hall on Euclid avenue. Townsendsites and their friends will be welcome and it is requested that they bring food for the table and their own table service. An entertainment program will be put on at the business meeting which will follow at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Smith also writes of the success which the ladies of the club enjoyed as a result of the serving of meals during the Orange county bazaar in Santa Ana, which closed last Saturday evening. Mrs. Mary A. Sipherd was chairman of the committee of ladies in charge. The other members of the committee were: Maud Riley, Edith Reynolds, Ella M. Wise, Lillie Miller, Cora Smith and Blanch Hart. A total of $19 was realized as profits from the meals served which will go to enrich the club treasury.

The Tustin club is prospering these days and its members are in a jubilant frame of mind. The winning of the grand prize of $50 in the Orange county membership drive by this club has put the spirit of the entire group into high gear. The club membership now numbers 114 with others contemplating joining. Last Monday evening after the business meeting was disposed of a report of the activities of the 19th district board was given by John W. Sauer, board member.

During the social hour that followed the birthdays of D. L. Thomas, club president, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Clarence Martin and Mrs. William Brown were honored. Birthday cake, sandwiches and coffee were served. This club will meet Monday evening at the regular hour in a business meeting in the club room at C and West Main streets. Plans for a Christmas carnival and luncheon to be held Friday, Dec. 17th are in progress. Mrs. A. P. Hibbet, adviser of the Townsendsites to hold that date open for a good time.

Dizzy Dean in Santa Role as Children Scream

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP)—Dizzy Dean played a rollicking Santa Claus to 600 children today at a Christmas party sponsored by a hotel distributing toys and sweets from a huge Christmas tree.

After the presents had been given out, wigs and whiskers were removed from the Cardinal pitching star while the children shouted their delight.

Jewelry Store Adds Craftsman to Staff

Marion F. Dodder's jewelry store, 308½ West Fourth street, today announced completion of remodeling activities, and formal opening of the new establishment for business.

George Arnold, former San Diego jewelry craftsman, has been added to the Dodder staff, and is prepared for all types of repair work, casting, enameling and diamond setting. Arthur E. Jensen, former Anaheim watchmaker and engraver, joined the staff some time ago.

intendant has announced each room will have a party Friday afternoon.

In addition, on Thursday the children will present "The Nativity" at 2:30 and at 7:30 p. m. at the Washington school. At the Lincoln school, all children and musical groups will assist with a program Friday afternoon, celebrating the Yuletide.

M. E. Martin, president of the Yorba Linda Club No. 1 has informed the writer that a meeting will be held next Monday evening in the M. E. church but other particulars are unknown to the writer.

A staff writer has this to say in the Townsend Weekly of date Dec. 6. "Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt apparently does not keep informed on all topics of the day. After addressing a crowd of about 1000 persons in the Coliseum in Evanville, Ind., Mrs. Roosevelt said she would answer any questions which individuals in the audience might wish to ask.

"Do you think the Townsend Recovery Plan will pass?" asked Lydia Hubbard Morris, secretary of Evansville Townsend Club No. 1. "Why, I think the Townsend Plan is dead," replied the First Lady, with a little laugh, "and it isn't a recovery plan and never was one. I don't think it was ever before the session."

The staff writer then says, "So! The Townsend Plan is dead! Of course Mrs. Roosevelt has not attended any Townsend mass meetings lately, with halls crowded to capacity and an eager crowd outside listening to the talk as relayed to them through the medium of a sound truck such as the meeting a few days ago in Chicago which was addressed by Dr. Townsend."

"Why, bless Mrs. Roosevelt's heart there were ten times as many people at that meeting as attended her Evansville meeting—and she's the wife of the President. Dr. Townsend is only a retired country doctor. People who attended this meeting and other big meetings held in many cities during the same week, did not notice anything unusual about them. They noted only enthusiasm, firm confidence and a brightly burning faith."

"No, Mrs. Roosevelt, the Townsend plan is not dead. It's not even ailing! It is not showing dangerous symptoms of pernicious anemia such as are apparent so early in the lives of New Deal measures and schemes. It is healthy and, just now putting on weight in quite a gratifying fashion."

Flag Saves Sailor From Pauper's Grave

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A flag that once flew over one of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock yachts saved John Hickinbotham, 78-year-old sailor, from a pauper's grave today.

Harry Hilliard, commodore of the Houston Yacht club, paid $75 for the flag. Hickinbotham, who died at the home for the aged here, said he once worked for the English tea magnate and that Sir Thomas gave him the flag.

County 4-H in Big Stock Show

Loyalty Pays Employee

By DALE CARNEGIE

From the north bedroom in my home I can look out the window into the garden of a man who once taught me something about loyalty. His name was V. Louis Johnson, and for some years before his death he was the Eastern representative of the Hoover Sweeper Company. One day as I was passing his house, a man came out and started DALE CARNEGIE down the street toward the station. Mr. Johnson had followed the man to the door and I stopped to have a word with him. He seemed a bit depressed for one of his usual exuberant spirits, and after a moment, his eyes following his late caller, he said:

"See that man? I've just had him on the carpet." Shaking his head dolefully, he added: "Not that it will ever do any good." The man, he went on to explain, was continually bungling things, was, in short, almost hopeless. I was amazed at Johnson, for he was well known both for his own efficiency and for his demands upon his staff.

"Why don't you fire him?" I asked.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that," he said with feeling. "That man believed in me and stuck by me through my hardest period. His loyalty during those days is something I could never forget. I wouldn't let old Jim out for anything in the world."

From a circular sent out by a Philadelphia bank many years ago:

MILDER CODE FAVORED FOR BUILDING

Feasibility of liberalizing building restrictions, which were imposed during the panic following the 1933 earthquake in downtown Santa Ana, was discussed at yesterday's meeting of the Santa Ana Realty board. Possible action to press an investigation of the proposal was delayed.

Building restrictions in downtown areas, it was pointed out, has prompted many merchants who otherwise would have built new establishments to move into old buildings. This was cited as one reason why construction has not picked up as rapidly as expected.

The discussion came up informally during the course of a business session conducted by President Earl Hawks. Developments in the proposal that the city employ a planning consultant also were discussed. The board authorized President Hawks to appoint a five-man committee to draft a list of the realtors' tentative objectives for 1938.

Gets Medal for Stews Made of Horse Meat

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain. (AP)—Teresa Gonzalez, whose horsemeat stews kept the insurgent defenders of the Alcazar alive during the famous siege at Toledo, was awarded the Spanish cross of military merit today by the insurgent government.

The official announcement cited her refusal "to abandon her post despite the terrible shelling and the many casualties."

Government forces laid siege to the Alcazar for weeks at the start of the civil war. Their grip was loosened on Sept. 27, last year, by arrival of insurgent troops.

NEWS OF ORANGE COUNTY COMMUNITIES

YULE LIGHTS JUDGES ARE APPOINTED

Dr. Huston Names Coastline Workers

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Judges for the Coast association's Christmas lighting program have been selected by the chairman, Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa. Four judging teams will decide the winners in the various classes.

Heading the list to judge best illuminated and decorated communities are Mayor Fred C. Rowland and Councilman E. H. Layton of Santa Ana. To judge shrines erected by communities and the best organization Christmas trees will be two representatives of the Long Beach Boulevard association.

The best illuminated and decorated business places and homes will be judged by Ray Baldwin of Long Beach and K. P. Frederick of the Press-Telegram. The best outside Christmas trees will be passed upon by W. N. Holmes and C. D. Lindsay of Santa Ana. Judging will start at 8 o'clock, beginning at San Clemente and by dividing the work it is expected the judging will be completed early in the evening.

Each community is expected to have representatives on hand to meet the judges on arrival and to take them to the best displays in the locality. This arrangement will save considerable time and insure the best in each locality being included in the coast wide competition.

Prizes have been offered by all the coast communities from San Clemente to Long Beach as follows: City of San Clemente, City of Laguna Beach, City of Newport Beach, City of Huntington Beach, City of Seal Beach, Long Beach Press-Telegram, Costa Mesa chamber of commerce, Lido Isle Community association, Newport Beach, South Coast Improvement association, and others.

Representatives of each community to meet the judges on arrival have been selected as follows: At Seal Beach, C. A. Miller; at Huntington Beach, Sol White; Newport Beach, J. D. Watkins; Costa Mesa, C. W. TeWinkle; Seal Beach, Mrs. J. A. Armitage; Laguna Beach, H. H. Henshaw; South Laguna, Dan O'Flaherty; Dana Point, David T. Prenter; Doheny Park, D. W. Leyden; San Juan Capistrano, D. M. Callis; and San Clemente, Dan Mulherron.

ORANGE C. OF C. HEADS NAMED

ORANGE.—New directors of the chamber of commerce for the coming year are W. O. Hart, Mason M. Fishback, Roy Edwards, Martell Thompson, E. H. Smith, and Ray Stull, it was announced Friday after a count of the ballots returned by members. The new directors will hold office for two years, as six new ones are elected each year of the total of 12 directors on the board.

Hold-over directors are H. J. Kogler, S. Russell Caldwell, Gordon C. Richmond and Walter Meyer. Retiring directors are Frank C. Collins, president for the past year, W. F. Lentz, T. P. Douglas, C. W. Coffey, Donald Smiley and Jay Brown.

It was announced by the chamber of commerce that the children's Christmas party announced for Dec. 16, will be held Dec. 20 at 2:30 p. m. The change was made after school authorities came before the chamber and said few children would be able to attend Dec. 16, as school is not dismissed for holiday vacation until Dec. 17.

Yes Sir, She's His Baba

Miss Valerie Brooke, known in the East Indies as Princess Baba, was married at Marylebone, England, to Bob Gregory, a wrestler. She is the daughter of the white Rajah of Sarawak. Here they are embracing after the ceremony as he uses a bear-hug technique.

SEEK SPEED RECORDS ON NEWPORT BAY

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Efforts to establish a world's record for 732 cubic-inch hydroplanes will be made Sunday afternoon, Dec. 19, from 1 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Approval for the event has been given by the city council and city officials will help in carrying out the necessary surveys and other details to have the course protected and the measured mile exactly located. Complete surveys of the area have been made by City Engineer R. L. Patterson and the patrol work will be supervised by Harbor master T. E. Bouchey.

Walter E. Olson, director of the American Power Boat association, made the formal request and in doing so stated he believes that a world's record can be established for this class of boat with a speed of at least 75 to 80 miles an hour.

Officials of the Newport Harbor Yacht club and the Balboa Yacht club will be asked to assist in making the records official and the Long Beach Yacht club, under whose auspices some of the contesting boats will try for the world's records, will take part in planning the tests.

The Newport Harbor chamber of commerce has been requested to see the mile course officially designated and aid in installation of timing and other devices needed to carry out these fast time trials.

BERGEN NAMED SCOUT LEADER

LA HABRA.—Herbert M. Bergen last night was elected as chairman of the North Orange county Boy Scout committee at the annual district meeting in the American Legion hall at La Habra.

More than 50 Scout leaders from all communities of the district attended the winter session, where reports of the past year's activity were heard and new leaders selected. Principal speaker was Alvin McCray of Los Angeles, regional director.

Kenneth Kessler, retiring chairman, presided. Sam Corcoran, chairman of the court of honor, and Bergen, financial chairman, made reports.

SCOUT COURT SLATED AT H. B.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Boy Scouts of District 1 of the Orange county council, of which Huntington Beach is a part, will hold their quarterly district court of honor here next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Memorial hall at which time the Scouts will be awarded badges of recognition for achievements of the last three months.

An investiture ceremony will be held at which time a group of boys will be welcomed into the organization. Preceding the court of honor the Scouts of the district will hold a dinner meeting at the First Baptist church.

M'INNIS NEW Y.M.C.A. HEAD

ORANGE.—J. T. McInnis was elected president of the local Y. M. C. A. board when that body met for organization Wednesday, replacing Ralph W. Hull, who served the past three years.

Other officers on the board include Charles Robinson, vice president; Russell Parks, secretary, and Ray Stull, treasurer. President McInnis is former Hi-Y commissioner, and several times represented the local Y. M. C. A. at meetings of the Pacific Southwest area.

News About El Toro Folks

Ladies of the El Toro Woman's club spent a very enjoyable afternoon here Thursday at their Christmas party, given by Mrs. John and Mrs. George Osterman. And a very busy one too, making plans for the children's Christmas tree which is to be in the El Toro hall Friday evening of Dec. 17th.

Visitors present were Mrs. Snow Freeman, Mrs. Elmer Osterman and Mrs. Edith Evans of Santa Ana, Mrs. Mary Huddy Jardene of Orange, Mrs. Minnie Swartz, George Stevens, Mrs. Ethel Prathers and Mrs. Mary E. Taul of El Toro.

Though sponsored by the club, the Christmas tree is a community affair. Hence, all of our villagers are invited to assist either by donations or by helping with the decorations and the like, at the hall, early that Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Whisler enjoyed another of their delightful trailer trips, this time trailing on the shores of Lake Elsinore.

RECREATION CENTER SET AT MESA

COSTA MESA.—Latest reports give definite assurance that a recreation center will soon be established in Costa Mesa, the project to be under the supervision of trained, government-paid leaders.

The center will provide not only sports and games but instruction in vocal and instrumental music; folk dancing and handicraft, woodcarving, pottery, painting and fashioning of girls' and women's wearing apparel.

Mrs. Frances P. Myers, recreation leader and Lloyd Willcutt, director of the local set-up, are constantly contacting various groups and making a comprehensive canvass of the community to learn what type of program will be most logical and best serve needs of the vicinity.

Mrs. Maud Lathrum and Everett Richardson are working with federal directors and Newport Beach social and civic groups in laying out a similar program for the beach communities.

The Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce recently went on record in pledging support of the project as the leading co-sponsor. All other local service groups will co-operate with the chamber in the matter.

GILBERT TALKS TO ROTARIANS

ORANGE.—Newton W. Gilbert, Santa Ana, former member of congress and judge at large of the Philippine islands, spoke at a meeting of the Rotary club Thursday, telling of his experiences in the islands.

He served as member of the Indiana senate, was lieutenant governor of the same state, a member of the 50th congress, member of the Philippine commission, secretary of public instruction and vice governor of the Philippines.

He also was acting governor-general of the islands from 1912 to 1913, and president of the board of regents of the Philippine university. He is a brother of Guy Gilbert, Santa Ana, a past president of the Rotary club here.

Dr. Robert B. McAlay, president of the club, presided. Mrs. Bess Coe, pianist of the club, gave a program.

His daughter, Mrs. Sally Coe Mueller, sang several selections.

Sunshine, Shower Members Meet

STANTON.—Members of the Sunshine 'n Shower club enjoyed their annual holiday party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Rodde.

Attending were Mrs. F. L. Bushnell, Mrs. Nellie Benson, Mrs. Ruth Bennett, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Albert Carr, Mrs. F. L. Farr, Mrs. Catherine Green, Mrs. S. H. Hilton, Mrs. Clarence Howard, Mrs. Milton Hasell, Mrs. Elbert Jones, Mrs. Ella Laughlin, Mrs. Eva O'Donnell, Mrs. Will Thompson, Mrs. Ed. Thompson, Mrs. John Maloney, Mrs. Conn E. Pollock, Mrs. Charles Moolick, Mrs. William Pesterfield, Mrs. Dick Yater, and Mrs. Walter Pritchett, Pasadena.

However, he'd check with Wyman's office right away.

The 10 minutes Olive waited until Sam called back were long, agonizing minutes. Hours almost. She sat on her bed with the phone in her hands, looking at the ugly black cross-piece and the round dial.

Her fingers were trembling, and she had a peculiar tight sensation in her throat. She could hardly speak when the phone rang, and it was Sam, and his voice seemed a bit excited.

"No, Wyman's office isn't ready yet. Nobody has been sent out. Wyman, in fact, is out some place to dinner, so I didn't speak to him personally, but I did talk to one of his aids. Pretended I wanted some information. I take it she's not back yet?"

Olive told him she wasn't.

BETTER COME

"Think I'd better come right out. Don't understand it. Don't get this until I get there, and for goodness sakes, if those two reporters are still there, don't go out and ask them anything."

"And if anybody phones and asks for Nancy, tell them she's taking a bath. She'll probably be back, anyway, by the time I get there."

But Nancy wasn't at home when Sam came at 9:35, and Olive's face was white when she opened the door.

"She's taken her overnight bag, Sam," she whispered. "And she's taken some of her things, and I don't understand. She didn't tell me she was going any place the last time I talked to her."

"Her overnight case?" Sam followed her to the bedroom, where Olive was already on her knees before the bed.

HAVENT ROOM

"Yes, see, it's supposed to be here. We haven't room in the closet. I keep mine under my bed and she keeps hers under hers. I don't know why I looked but something made me."

"Something made me lift up the spread and feel for the bag, and it's gone! You can see it's gone!" Sam knelt down, too. There was nothing under Nancy's bed. "Have you looked for it any place else?"

"Yes, yes—every place there is

Fullerton Izaak Waltons Gain 210 Members in Year

FULLERTON.—There are 210 more members of Izaak Walton clubs in Fullerton this year than there were last year.

The figures revealed at the annual meeting of the Fullerton Izaak Walton club Wednesday night showed 150 new members of the club, with 60 members of the Ann Newman chapter, the woman's auxiliary of the Fullerton club, the first and only woman's organization in the United States, making more than 200 new members in all.

John C. Gregory was in charge last night, and appointed as the nominating committee for presenting new officers' names Floyd Williams, Bill Sleuter, Ray Yerian, S. L. Burgess, and H. E. Douglas.

Gordon H. Garland talked to the 300 guests attending on the place of such organizations as Izaak Waltonians in conservation programs. Garland is an assemblyman from Woodland, and was introduced by Thomas Kuchel, assemblyman from this district.

Membership awards were made to 14 men, with J. A. Griffen receiving the high award for 24 new members, and Ben Mathews the second high for 20 new members.

CYPRESS YULE FETE PLANNED

CYPRESS.—An unusual stage setting with special lighting effects and elaborate costumes will feature the Christmas entertainment to be staged in the school auditorium here next Thursday evening, according to an announcement by the principal, Harold Boos.

Faculty members of the school are responsible for the entire production, from writing the two plays to designing the scenery, Boos said today, and about 200 costumes have been made by members of the P-T. A.

Children from the primary grades will open the show with a play entitled, "Christmas in Toyland."

Upper grade pupils will be seen in the second half of the performance in a play called "Christmas

WINTER 'Y' CAMP SLATED

ORANGE.—Orange and Anaheim Y. M. C. A. boys will attend a winter camp at Camp Osceola, Dec. 29, 30 and 31, it was announced Thursday by Sheldon Swenson, executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A. here. About 25 boys from each town are expected to attend.

Ages of the boys who will attend are between 13 and 15 years, and the cost will be $1 per day plus food and blankets, each boy to take his own.

In Other Lands." Between acts a procession of sixty children carrying electric torches will march through the darkened auditorium singing carols. The concluding scene will be a pantomime presentation of the Nativity.

Olive went through the few rooms again, the puzzled frown on her forehead deepening. Nancy wasn't here.

Nancy wasn't in the kitchen, she wasn't in the living room, she wasn't in the bedroom and she wasn't in the bathroom.

She'll be back. That was what Olive told herself as she looked at the clock after she had shut the ice box. Quarter of nine. Five minutes past her own wrist watch she had set later in the afternoon said 20 minutes of nine.

At nine when Nancy hadn't come she had another thought that sent fear scurrying through her, and she phoned Sam Keene. Fortunately he was at home—she didn't know what she would have done if he had been out.

THE POLICE

"Sam, they haven't come for Nancy, have they? The police, I mean. I got home at 20 of nine, and she wasn't here, and I thought perhaps she had gone out for a walk to meet me, so I didn't worry, but now it's nine, a little after, and she isn't home yet."

No, Sam said, Nancy hadn't been arrested yet. He had been tipped off that she might possibly be put under arrest soon, but the warning wasn't official, and he would be the first to be notified when the arrest was made.

However, he'd check with Wyman's office right away.

The 10 minutes Olive waited until Sam called back were long, agonizing minutes. Hours almost. She sat on her bed with the phone in her hands, looking at the ugly black cross-piece and the round dial.

Her fingers were trembling, and she had a peculiar tight sensation in her throat. She could hardly speak when the phone rang, and it was Sam, and his voice seemed a bit excited.

"Think I'd better come right out. Don't understand it. Don't get this until I get there, and for goodness sakes, if those two reporters are still there, don't go out and ask them anything."

"And if anybody phones and asks for Nancy, tell them she's taking a bath. She'll probably be back, anyway, by the time I get there."

But Nancy wasn't at home when Sam came at 9:35, and Olive's face was white when she opened the door.

"She's taken her overnight bag, Sam," she whispered. "And she's taken some of her things, and I don't understand. She didn't tell me she was going any place the last time I talked to her."

"Her overnight case?" Sam followed her to the bedroom, where Olive was already on her knees before the bed.

HAVENT ROOM

"Yes, see, it's supposed to be here. We haven't room in the closet. I keep mine under my bed and she keeps hers under hers. I don't know why I looked but something made me."

"Something made me lift up the spread and feel for the bag, and it's gone! You can see it's gone!" Sam knelt down, too. There was nothing under Nancy's bed. "Have you looked for it any place else?"

"Yes, yes—every place there is to look! And she's taken things, her handkerchiefs, some of her underwear, her stockings, her toilet case. Her cosmetics are gone from the bathroom dressing table—only mine are there.

And her tan robe, it isn't in her closet, and her Chinese padded bedroom slippers. They're gone! The only dress that is gone is the blue and white print dress she was wearing today—the one she wore this morning. You remember, with the little jacket.

"But her blue hat is gone. I just looked for it, and her blue handbag, and her dark blue gloves—and her topcoat."

Sam sat down on Olive's bed heavily. She was still on her knees on the floor.

STARK FEAR

"You're sure?" he said at last. "She nodded, and stark fear showed in her eyes, and she buried her head in her arms. Her body rocked to and fro.

The breath was knocked from Sam, too. He was dizzy for a moment, and then his mind cleared. He reached out and shook Olive's shoulder.

"Don't do that, Olive! We haven't time for anything but action. When did you see Nancy last? I want everything, from the time you started back from the police station this morning until now. Try and remember everything that's happened all day."

Olive lifted her face wearily. "Mr. Blair took us home. You know that. You came out and helped us into Mr. Howard's car. Nancy and I sat in the back. . . . her voice was shaking, her hands, too, as she clasped them on her lap.

"She told me about the lie detector, everything that had happened in Captain Wyman's office. Then Mr. Blair let us out here, and I came in with her, and we got some lunch."

"Not Mr. Blair; he went right on back to the Ambassador. After lunch I offered to stay the rest of the day with her, but she urged me to go to the shop. Are these the things you want to know?"

"Yes, yes—go on!"

"She said, well—you know we need every cent we can scrape together even if you are taking her case for nothing. So she said that I should be at the shop. . . ."

ABOUT THE CASE

"Did she say anything then about the case, about what she had planned to do?"

"No, I had the feeling that she didn't want to talk about it, so we didn't. She didn't ask me not to, understand."

"And then?"

"Well, Linda Roberts, who is working for us at the shop, stays until six-thirty. I had to be back by then to keep open until eight-thirty. We decided to do as we usually do about the shop."

"I was back at the shop at six-thirty—I took a taxi because I was afraid I would be late. Nancy called it for me. I promised her I'd take a taxi back, but I didn't. I walked, and I got some ice cream on the way, because I thought she might like it—she didn't eat much lunch, and hardly any dinner, although she pretended to."

"I didn't come down Courtland street, I took Grotto and came by the alley because I didn't want to run into the reporters. I came in the back door. I didn't ring because I didn't want to worry Nancy."

"I used my key—it's a Yale lock, you know, and called when the door was open, but she didn't answer. That's all I know, Sam. Everything."

"She didn't say anything about going away. She was nervous, yes, and upset, but that was natural. She did say, though, when I left at nearly six-thirty, that she hoped she'd get a good sleep tonight—that she really hadn't slept last night. Sam, do you think—?"

"I don't want to think about anything yet. I want to know whether you called her for the time you got to the shop at six-thirty until you came home?"

"No, I didn't. I was pretty busy, and alone, and I didn't have time. I shut up a little earlier than usual so I could get the ice cream—"

"I called her, Olive," Sam's greenish eyes clouded, and his homely features twisted into a scowl. "I called her at exactly eight-twenty. I had something I wanted to tell her—the tip-off from the D. A.'s office that she was to be arrested soon."

"I hung onto the phone for a couple of minutes, I guess, then I hung down, and called the shop, thinking I might get you. No answer there, either. I thought both of you had gone out so I forgot about it. Planned to call here later."

VERY QUIET

The room was very quiet. Neither Sam nor Olive moved. "Don't think it, Sam! Don't, I tell you!" Olive cried hysterically, after a while.

"Don't think what?"

"What you're thinking! That Nancy has run away! She hasn't! She hasn't run away from us. I swear it!"

"Then where has she gone, Olive? Can you tell me? This morning she submits to a lie detector test, and she fails badly. The prosecution can draw only one conclusion from the test—that she was lying about her movements on the night of July 1."

"She's upset all day since the test—you are a witness to that. She is gone, gone with an overnight bag, her clothes in the bag. I can't think anything else, Olive. It's impossible."

"We've got to think of something else. Some reason for her going. There must be one," the girl exclaimed desperately.

SHE WOULDN'T

"She wouldn't just go without telling me where she was going. Without giving me a hint. She's talked over everything with me since I've known her. Suddenly she wouldn't change—I know she wouldn't change."

"She's Nancy Roland, and I know her as well as I would know a sister if I had one. She is a sister to me."

Sam laid a gentle hand on Olive's arm, and lifted her up to the bed beside him. He had known her for a good many years. First as a shy girl on her father's ranch when he was earning money to start his first year at law school.

Later as a shy young lady, a freshman in the same college when he was a senior, his fifth year in law.

It was only this last year that he had discovered she wasn't shy at all, but charming, and that he liked her more than any girl he had ever known before.

NANCY IS GONE

"Nevertheless, Olive, Nancy is gone, and we who should know where she is, don't know. Officers may be sent out any minute to make an arrest. Even tonight."

"They may be on the way now. We should be able to produce her, and we can't. Julian Howard is the one who will suffer the most—because he put up her bail. He'll lose his $30,000 if we don't find her."

"She'll come back!"

and ENDS

By PAUL
WRIGHT

University of California athletic officials undoubtedly will develop many grey hairs in determining who, among the thousands, will get tickets for the Rose Bowl game with Alabama.

The deadline for the return of ticket applications was up at midnight last night, and unofficial reports indicated each application contained a request for an average of four of the six tickets allotted. The applications were restricted to alumni and students.

Since each member of the California alumni in good standing had the privilege of applying for six tickets, and with the alumni group numbering around 23,000, it was seen that the general public stood little chance for a ticket.

Blas Mercurio, scintillating quarterback of Santa Ana's champion Dons, is headed for either Santa Barbara State or the University of Oregon.

Loyola's Lions, Pacific coast collegiate champions, are looking forward to another banner season in ice hockey.

Skates are flying two nights a week at the Polar Palace in Hollywood, as Coach Tom Lieb builds his new team around three brilliant veterans—Co-Captains Bob Myre, center, and Stan Peterlin, defense, and big John Polich, right wing.

Loyola has won the Pacific coast title three years in a row. . . . Capacity crowds saw the Lions defeat Southern California's Trojans in a heated series last winter. . . . One of the games was so bitterly contested that a near riot resulted on the ice when player substitutes and spectators jammed onto the rink.

Morrison Receives Coaching Award

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Jesse Ray Morrison, who makes a living fooling the opposition, was selected today as the "best coach" in the Southeastern conference for 1937.

Conference coaches and Dixie sports writers agreed he turned in the finest job of tutoring at Vanderbilt. They voted in a poll conducted by the Nashville Banner.

Morrison, a 52-year-old disciple of deception and the spectacular on the gridiron, earned the honor by taking a lightly-regarded group of Commodores through a hard schedule with only two defeats.

Georgia Tech battered Vanderbilt, 14 to 0, and Alabama turned Morrison's squad back with a fourth quarter field goal, 9-7.

WRESTLING

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Danno O'Mahoney, 228, defeated Ed Don George, 229, from Java, two of three falls.

NORTH BERGEN, N. J.—Abie Coleman, 220, New York, threw Joe Dusek, 220, Omaha, Neb., 36-51.

CLEVELAND.—Everett Marshall, 217, La Juanta, Colo., and Ali Baba, 205, New York, drew, one hour.

He'll Perform in Rose Bowl for 'Bama

Cutting fancy capers, Alabama university prepares to go to the Rose Bowl in grand manner. Here is Irving Berlin Kahn, sabretwirling drum major who entered Alabama in 1935, believing his chances of performing at Pasadena would be greater there than at any other college.

Pro Grid Title at Stake Between Bears, Redskins

BAUGH PACES WASHINGTON TOMORROW

CHICAGO. (AP)—Boss George Halas of the Chicago Bears is putting a big pile of chips on his second-string line for tomorrow's national professional gridiron title and cash battle with Washington's Redskins.

With the Bears—and the Redskins as well—as ready as they ever will be for the engagement, Halas was more than ever convinced today that his forwards, particularly the reserve set, represent the Bruins' chances for victory. In erecting a defense to cope with slinging Sam Baugh, hard-running Cliff Battles and the rest of the Washington attack, Halas and Line Coach Luke Johnson have emphasized that the Bear linemen must be in the Redskin backfield without delay on every play.

They aren't so sure that the first Bear line is so much tougher than Washington's No. 1 wall—but they figure that no team in the league should be able to handle two Chicago lines of equal strength, which is where the second stringers come in. Switching the two sets of Giants, Halas hopes, will keep Baugh and his talented mates from getting too far out of hand. And he doesn't think Washington's reserve linemen will be quite that effective.

Halas is definitely set on his starting line except for the ends. Joe Stylahar and Del Bjork will be at the tackles, George Musso and Danny Fortmann, guards, and Jim Bausch, center. Backing them up will be Russ Thompson and Milt Trost, tackles; Joe Zeller and Kay Bell, guards, and Bill Conkright and Frank Sullivan, centers. Ed Manake and Bill Karr probably will get the end assignments, although Halas may pick a combination from among Dick Plasman, Hank Hammond, George Wilson and Lester McDonald.

The Washingtons are set to start with Wayne Miller and Charley Malone, ends; "Turk" Edwards and Jim Barber, tackles; Jim Karcher and Les Olson, guards, and Eddie Kawa, a former Bear, at center.

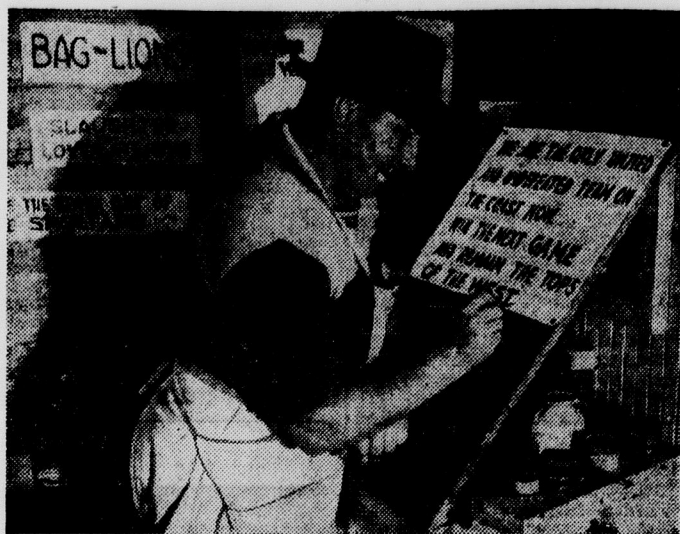

Both teams were devoting a lot of time worrying over weather conditions. They all expect to have to hustle enough to keep warm, but the footing is something else again. Halas was particularly concerned over the going for the Bear forwards must have something solid underfoot in order to accomplish the fast-changing defensive maneuvers outlined.

CENTER REJOINS SANTA CLARA

SANTA CLARA. (AP)—Santa Clara University's Bronco, with regular center Phil Dougherty again in condition, plan to start stiff practice next week for their New Year's Sugar Bowl game with Louisiana State at New Orleans. Dougherty, whose side was injured in the Santa Clara-Gonzaga game, was declared fit yesterday after hospital observation.

THE DUKE 'SHINERS' DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Black eyes seem to have been the vogue among football players at Duke university this year. At one time or another every regular lineman was decorated with the shiner.

Henry Schmidt Creates Pep for Santa Clara

TIME OUT

Whenever he can, Santa Clara Trainer Henry Schmidt pauses to paint signs designed to inspire the Bronco athletic teams. Schmidt runs to alliteration in his signs. He thinks they've had a lot to do with Santa Clara's great 1937 football season.

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP)—If the bill for adhesive tape is pretty large at Santa Clara university, it's not because the football team, one of the Pacific coast's strongest, suffered an unusual number of injuries.

It's because Trainer Henry Schmidt uses the tape to hang up "pep" signs all over the locker room.

PAPER HANGING

Seeking a spot where the boys can't help seeing his latest snap slogan, Schmidt looks over the wall of the locker room.

"I keep changing the signs. I remind them of past lickings we've taken and the big victories we're winning now. I cut cartoons out of the papers to make the boys mad or make them proud."

"See, I have my own drawing board and paints right here where I work. Whenever I have a breathing spell I take them out and go to work. The boys see a new sign every time they turn around."

SNEAD POSTS 67 FOR LEAD

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP)—Sluggin' Sam Snead headed into the second round of the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open today with a two-stroke lead on the field, a four-under-par 67 to show for his opening round and a good word for the 14-club rule.

"The club limit bother me?" he said. "Heck, no! I'm very much in favor of it. It makes the game less mechanical."

Snead, 25-year-old from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., used only 11 of the clubs permitted under the P. G. A. rule being employed in the local open, although it does not officially go into effect until Jan. 1.

"Why," said Sam, "I think a golfer could get along with 10 clubs after he got accustomed to it. It just makes the player think more about his shots and depend less on his clubs."

Snead's 67, fashioned with tremendous drives—several were over 300 yards yesterday—and a sound all-around game, left him two shots ahead of Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. champion of Evanston, Ill. A penalty stroke on the long 15th hole, where he topped his second shot into the water, ruined Revolta's chances of a better score.

Close on Snead's heels were 24 golfers, trailing him by five strokes or less.

Five were tied at 70, seven more at 71, even par, and 11 others at 72.

Several of the most dangerous contenders, in fact, were at the 72 notch, including Ralph Guldahl, National Open champion, and Harry Cooper, the year's top money player and lowest average scorer.

Among the 72-shooters, too, was Bob Servis of Dayton, O., the leading amateur.

Thomas Given Slight Hope Against Schmeling Monday

NEW YORK. (AP) Harry Thomas, the willing whetstone for Max Schmeling's dulled ring weapons, is in the position of a man going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Nine chances out of 10 he won't make it—but, boy, if he does!

If it were not for the memories, ever green, of the Braddock Baer, Schmeling-Louis and Farr-Louis form reversals, the general public would take Monday night's fight between Thomas and Schmeling lightly. However, those three imbroglios have made the fistic clients wary and curious.

Tub-thumping which has boomed extraordinary new qualities in Thomas' repertoire must be ignored. If he were as great as some would have you believe he would have been fighting top bouts long ago. But the fact remains that Schmeling has chosen no second-rater for his first test since Louis. Thomas is a genuine tough article, ready and able to give the Teuton slasher a busy evening.

The bout will have a third competitor—the old guy with the scythe. Prime importance is attached to Schmeling's age and his 16 months of exile from the ring. Schmeling admits he is 32. Some say he is three years older.

Schmeling brings a war worn but trust armament into the ring.

'STAND-IN' TO OPEN SUNDAY

A chance to peek behind the Hollywood scenes and laugh at the same time is provided by "Stand-In," the side-splitting Walter Wanger comedy starring Leslie Howard and Joan Blondell, which opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow, it was announced today by Manager George King.

Adapted to the screen from Clarence Budington Kelland's hilarious story, "Stand-In" tells the story of the shy young banker who went to Hollywood, took over a $10,000,000 studio and tried to run it according to the science of mathematics. Joan Blondell has her finest role as the "stand-in" of the title, who helps the bewildered banker over the hurdles.

Humphrey Bogart plays the genius producer who is struggling against the handicap of a fabulous foreign director and Thelma Cheri, the glamour star, who are conspiring with a rival producer to wreck the company. Alan Mowbray has his maddest and funniest role in the film, and C. Henry Gordon in his usual villainous self.

The second featured attraction is "Idol of the Crowds," a thrilling love story framed against an ice hockey background with John Wayne and Sheila Bromley in the leading roles. The picture deals with the adventures of a handsome young amateur ice hockey star who is lured to the professional rink through necessity, the necessity of obtaining $10,000 to insure the happiness of the woman he loves.

Selected short subjects will include a popular Pete Smith short, "Romance of Radium," and World News events.

Mary Stoddard

Carelessness of Father in Personal Appearance Worries Girl, 15

Mary, 15, presented her problem through these columns recently. She is ashamed of her dad because he is slovenly. He will not bathe nor wear clean clothes. She dreads to invite any of her friends to her home and she longs to have a father she might embrace. It is difficult at times to draw conclusions from these letters.

In a second letter Mary elucidates. Her dad is not old. He doesn't do physical labor, but has his own office.

Is he physically ill? Has he lost his lease on life? What is wrong? Whatever is wrong, nagging or quarreling will not build up that pride he lacks. Perhaps the family physician might give some valuable advice. If possible, he should be induced to have a thorough physical examination. If he is merely lazy and refuses to change his ways he's apt to have a rude awakening one of these days. Mary's second letter follows:

Dear Miss Stoddard: Perhaps I did not express myself clearly in my first letter which you printed Monday, so in fairness to me, won't you let me explain to people I will not think I am ashamed of my working father?

My father doesn't do day labor, but works in an office of his own. If he worked for someone else, I'm sure they would have spoken to him long ago about his dirty hands and face and the odor of perspiration.

You said nothing about his not changing his underwear and that is important. I know old people sometimes become lax in this respect because some poor old people get softening of the brain and can't help their habits, and while it is repulsive, it is easily understood. But my dad is not old, he's only 45.

You also said nothing about the way he yells at my mother. Now perhaps their quarrels are none of my business, but I have to listen to them and would be thought bad if I ran away from the home I was born into, wouldn't I? My mother is so sweet that when my father yells at her I get sick all over.

Please print this letter because so often people do get the impression that their children are ashamed of them because they are working people or poor and that is not my reason. It is, I am sure, a more personal one.

Sincerely, MARY.

'BARRIER' TO END TONIGHT

The majestic splendor of the great North Woods is the background for the powerful and gripping romance of a handsome army officer and a simple woods girl in "The Barrier," picturization of the famous Rex Beach story, which shows for the last times tonight at the Broadway theater.

The cast which does so much to make "The Barrier" a memorable picture is headed by Leo Carrillo, Jean Parker, James Ellison, Otto Kruger, Robert Barrat, Andy Clyde and Sara Haden. Carrillo has one of the finest roles of his career as the sturdy and loyal French-Canadian trapper who is possessed by an insatiable love for Miss Parker. Kruger is the suave villain, and Jean Parker and James Ellison are unforgettable as the young lovers whose romance is almost destroyed by a dark incident in the past.

Of equal interest is the second feature on the program, "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," a picture

WEST COAST TO SHOW COMEDY

Two newly released features will open on the double bill at the West Coast theater tomorrow, it was announced today by Manager George King. The attractions are "Live, Love and Learn" and "Partners in Crime."

In "Live, Love and Learn" the handsome star, Robert Montgomery, is seen as a penniless Greenwich Village painter who marries Rosalind Russell, member of New York's wealthiest social set. Rosalind professes love in a garish, to wealth and society. Consequently, when by a quirk of fate, Montgomery becomes both wealthy and famous, his domestic problems become intricately complicated, particularly when another woman, in the person of Helen Vinson, enters the scene.

That there is no dearth of laughs in the new romance, however, is assured by the presence in a "fat part" of Robert Benchley. As is well known to observers of the famous humorist's movie shorts, whenever Benchley enters a scene all seriousness vanishes.

Two favorite veteran comedians join forces with three younger players in dealing out the laughs and thrills of "Partners in Crime," a new comedy-mystery which is the story of two pals who get mixed up in a crooked city election.

The two men who take the leading roles are Lynne Overman and

'BRIDE WORE RED' TO OPEN

"The Bride Wore Red" will open at the Walker's theater tomorrow, continuing through Wednesday with "Dance, Charlie, Dance" as the accompanying feature.

"The Bride Wore Red" is the story of a waterfront waif who becomes a society belle for a month by the chance of fate. It was adapted to the screen from Ferenc Molnar's stage success, "The Girl from Trieste."

Franchot Tane, in the role of a humble postmaster, wins the star for the first time in the many pictures he and Joan Crawford have appeared together. Robert Young as the "other man" is given his greatest acting opportunity in the new film as a result of his outstanding work in the recent "I Met Him in Paris."

Collette Lyons, Broadway musical comedy star who is making her screen debut, gives Allen Jenkins the works in "Dance, Charlie, Dance." Stuart Erwin, whose brilliant portrayal of "dumb country boy" characters has won him fame and the stellar lead in the comedy, "Sunbonnet Blue" color cartoon and a news reel complete the new show at Walker's.

Roscoe Karns. Three important younger players in the film are Muriel Hutchinson, Anthony Quinn and Inez Courtney.

Short subjects will include the specialty, "All-American Drawback" and World News events.

I JUST FOUND OUT— Janitor's Job Now More Complicated

By MILLARD BROWNE

Professional janitors, proud of their occupation, don't mind being called janitors. It's mostly the ones who are doing janitor work to tide them over a bad spot in some other profession that would rather be termed "maintenance engineers."

They're all in the same business, though, and the whole thing's more complicated than it used to be. Janitors no longer are people who just carry a mop and broom around a building, clean up dirty floors and let it go at that.

Good janitors actually must be "engineers," and most of the 200 who work in various public and private Santa Ana buildings have a lot of technical knowledge that gives their labor something of the professional touch.

They know, for instance, that you never should use acid or alkaline soaps to clean tile or marble, that oil is best cleanser for linoleum and that it forms the best base for wax. They also know what each kind of brush will do, and they can tell at a glance whether they're being sold a bristle or horseshair brush.

That kind of knowledge may not seem important, but it makes a difference in how efficiently and economically maintenance work can be done.

That's why they're running a custodians' school in Santa Ana this fall. It's aimed at the school district's 41 janitors, but it's open to the other 150 in the city as well, and many of them are turning out to learn how janitor work can be done scientifically.

Santa Ana high school is the biggest employer of janitors, has 12 full-time men. St. Joseph hospital is next with 10, then the courthouse with nine. There's only one junior college janitor, but the board of education employs eight student custodians who rotate and help out where needed.

Veteran Santa Ana custodian, so far as is known, is George Benedict, gardener at the courthouse. He started doing janitor work 47 years ago, worked in the building until Dan H. Patrick replaced him as head custodian 20 years ago. Since then Benedict has been in charge of the courthouse grounds.

Hardest-working janitor in town, most maintenance men will agree, is John Vierra, who takes care of the entire city hall and police station single-handed.

Average equipment for a janitor comes to about $50, includes such necessities as brooms for hardwood floors, sidewalks and several other specialized jobs, chamberpots, window squeegee, bucket, pinger, mop and mopsack and several kinds of floor dressings.

Employers purchase supplies for most janitors, though in most cases they are put in charge of equipment, do their own shopping for replacements and charge it to the boss.

Free-lancing janitoring is rather profitable for the ones who go into it professionally. Philip Galbreath, one such free-lancer, reputedly is the best-equipped janitor in town. In addition to the normal stock of brooms, brushes, etc., he has a floor-waxing machine, several special brushes that will permit him to work twice as fast as some.

Janitors' pay ranges from around $50 to $200 a month, with the well-established, hard-working free-lancers getting the best pay, as a rule.

Bane of the maintenance men's existence is the big number of tramp janitors that come through, make the rounds with a bucket and squeegee, pick up a few odd jobs, then leave town. These average one or two a

GARBO-BOYER DRAMA CLOSES

"Conquest," the most distinguished picture in which the famous Swedish star, Greta Garbo, has ever appeared, will show for the last times tonight at the West Coast theater with the brilliant French actor, Charles Boyer, co-starred.

As the famous Countess Marie Walewska, a woman who has gone down in history as the only woman who was able to sway not only the Emperor Napoleon but the course of an empire, Garbo has a role which is said to transcend in characterization and dramatic power any of her previous roles.

Boyer also achieves his peak in the part of Napoleon, mad to rule the world and using women as his pawns. In a make-up which required one hour and a half for its application, the noted French star gives an uncannily realistic resemblance to the "Little Corsican," an appearance augmented by his own acting genius.

Typical of all Garbo pictures, the supporting cast of "Conquest" is composed of the finest actors available in Hollywood. Heading a group of 30 speaking players together with hundreds of bit players and extras, are Reginald Owen, Alan Marshal, Henry Stephenson, Leif Erikson, Dame May Whitty and C. Henry Gordon.

The second attraction on the closing bill is "Beg, Borrow or Steal," a highly entertaining comedy featuring Ralph Morgan, Florence Rice and John Beal. Short subjects include a Silly Symphony cartoon, "Old Mill," and World News events.

Ninety per cent of Santa Ana's janitors are white men, 90 per cent of these have lived in town several years. Most are married and live at home, and only one is known to live on the premises with a room-and-board pay arrangement.

Near-monopoly on the janitor supply business is claimed by Virgil Clem of the Southern Counties Janitor Supply company, only one of its kind this side of Los Angeles. He supplies most local janitors with brooms, brushes, etc., and markets several kinds of cleaning fluids, waxes and other preparations manufactured under his own trademark.

Majority of the local custodians do their work in the daytime, though the ones in downtown business establishments have to wait till stores and offices are closed. School janitors all work during the day, have to get up in time to light fires, and stay long enough to clean up the premises after students have gone home.

Story Of Yukon

"White Fang" is romance of Alaska during gold rush days. It is adapted from Jack London's famous story, "Call of the Wild."

"PLEASE, SIR, WHERE'S THE ACORN?"

THE STORY SO FAR: The Queen of Fairies has introduced a port sailor doll to Santa. The sailor says he can rescue Helga, the doll that was stolen from the toyshop by the white fox.

Chapter 12
THE SAILOR STARTS OUT
Santa was dreadfully curious when he woke the next morning and found his toyshop already at work. The sailor doll told him they were making the fastest ice boat in the whole North, called "The Spray."

Then the Queen of Fairies said: "The fox is wearing a string of bells. If you need me, steal the bells from him, and ring them. I'll come."

Just before the sailor started to search for Helga in his iceboat Mrs. Santa gave him a fine gift. It was a warm suit of the softest white leather with a little jacket that fitted him high about his neck.

Then the sailor climbed into his boat, looked up to see which way the wind was blowing, set his sails and slid off down the hill and out of sight.

He had scarcely been gone an hour when he saw ahead of him dozens of squirrels running excitedly in and out of the fast oak tree. So he reeled his sails and came to a stop in their midst.

"Please, sir, where's the acorn," said a little lady squirrel all dressed up in a long green coat. "LOCK HIM UP!"

"Acorns?" said the sailor. "What do you mean?"

"Now stop pretending," said the lady squirrel. "Give it to me."

"But I don't have one," said the sailor. "Everybody, lock him up," shouted the lady squirrel. In a minute half a dozen squirrels were sitting on top of the sailor tying up his arms and legs.

"Wait a minute," he shouted. "I really don't know what you're talking about."

Then a very old gentleman squirrel, who had been watching him talk, said: "Maybe the boy is right. Let him talk."

Prisoner in Check Case Gets Break

Vernon D. Dickard, had check suspect, had decided to plead guilty and take the consequences. He did not even filing the usual application for probation.

But Dickard got probation anyway. Superior Judge James L. Allen, after hearing facts in the case, decided Dickard should have five years' probation after spending six months in jail, and then making restitution.

Dickard, surprised, went to jail.

Holiday Fete Given This Afternoon

Extending her hospitality to an intimate group during the pre-holiday season, Mrs. Hubert Gohres entertained at a delightful bridge luncheon this afternoon. The Doris-Kathryn tea room on North Main street was setting for the event.

Guests were seated at small tables centered with low bowls of cottonasters, the Yuletide hues of which were repeated in gay little talleis and in the wrappings of prizes awarded at the conclusion of contract. Larger bowls of the vivid berries, shrub decorated mantel and surrounding tables.

Invited to share in the affair by Mrs. Gohres were Mrs. E. Lee Smith, Miss Sada Mae McAulay, Mrs. James Merigold, Miss Betty Smith, Mrs. Lyle Kelly, Mrs. Russell Sullivan.

MISCELLANEOUS GIFTS SHOWERED ON MISS BRUNER

The approach of Miss Lois Bruner's wedding to Samuel T. Ross was the occasion for a gay party this week with Mrs. R. H. Gardell acting as gracious hostess in her home, 614 North Van Ness street.

Miss Bruner will become the bride of Mr. Ross sometime within the next week, and they will drive north to Seattle, Wash., for a honeymoon trip.

Guests spent the evening embroidering towels which were later presented to the honor guest along with many lovely miscellaneous gifts piled on a table bright with holly and wedding bells. Mrs. Otto Bruner won a grand prize in games played during the evening.

Mrs. Gardell used lovely red roses to carry out her holiday color motif, and followed the theme in refreshments as well. Those who enjoyed the evening, in addition to Miss Bruner, were Harry Stearns, Mrs. Russell Macy, Mrs. Nell Miller, Mrs. Otto Bruner and Mrs. Mary Lambert of Corona, Mrs. Edwin Goodokn, Mrs. H. E. Pettit, Mrs. Carl Doss, Mrs. George Doss and the hostess.

THIMBLE CLUB COMPLETES HOLIDAY WORK

Last touches for Christmas work necessitated a special meeting of members of the Native Daughters Thimble club, so Mrs. Olive Witt was hostess in her lovely new home on Olive street Thursday evening.

The group gathered at 11 a. m. and made a tour of inspection of the home and garden. At noon the hostess served a delightful luncheon with the assistance of her daughter, Miss Evelyn Witt. The table was spread with appropriate Yuletide cloths and matching napkins, and other decorations in the home were large bowls of panis.

FRED EARELS ENTERTAIN GROUP

An enjoyable special session of a little book club was held last evening when Mrs. Fred Earel and Dr. Earel received the members and their husbands at a pleasant affair.

Instead of the usual literary discussion, Dr. Earel showed moving pictures he took in Europe this fall, and conversation during the refreshment hour centered around these.

Guests were Dr. and Mrs. John Bower, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Frandson, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Daughters, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Froeschle, Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Schweitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bond, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Taylor of Pasadena, Mrs. A. H. Theal, and Mrs. Louella Blackburn.

MRS. BROWN IS LAGUNA GUEST

Mrs. Irving Brown has been the guest of Mrs. Irene Poisson of Laguna Beach for the past few days, and on Monday will go to Los Angeles to meet her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, who are flying from the East.

Dr. Brown is president of the National Optometrists association and a noted lecturer in both Europe and America on eye diseases. On Monday night, Mrs. Brown will be hostess at a dinner at the Billmore honoring Dr. Leray Quick Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Irving Brown will go to Havana, Cuba, to spend Christmas.

Acquire Honors

On the left is Miss Margaret Abel, who at formal rites was installed honored queen of Santa Ana Bethel of Job's Daughters this week. She will serve for the ensuing six months. (Gibson-Nail photo.) On the right is Miss Doris Webster, who was installed royal princess of the Tustin Sunshine Girls at elaborate ceremonies Wednesday at the Tustin Knights of Pythias hall.

Chat Awhile With Betty

Haven't even had an opportunity to quail from results at my last week's pome to the Messrs. Huber and Osterman, there's been so much talk of fowling and bagging. Heard tell that Lee Finley and his dad went shooting the other day all fixed to camp out rough and ready like—and then came a little mild precipitation that changed their plans so that ducks were the order of the day instead of quail. Heard tell too that the Horton-Scraps combination is all set to hit a new goal on the elusive birdings this week. Well, dinner parties will tell.

Which reminds me. Who was that gentleman in pajamas I saw out in the wee hours of the night, dissipating over a mail, with bathrobe but bare feet? The story goes that it was Charley McDaniel, a napped after a hard-fought badminton session—and it was hard to tell whether he or the waitress at the drive-in spot was the more nonplussed.

Is Lola Wehrly going to start up that salon movement of hers again? Last winter she had a series of book review-teas, that were really very interesting in many ways. It's a good idea, but it reminds me of an infamous pun once made. Someone in a monocled-sort of manner remarked that he was off to indulge in a session at a salon, and the bright young thing remarked—"Well—salon"—"I'll be seeing you."

Amid piquant pictures of the week: Gladys Bemis, of whom it's hard to realize the possession of a very deb daughter. Virginia Babbitt, lovely in ashes of rose-hued frock with broad-brimmed black hat. Betty Winckler looking like a roguish Katherine Hepburn in her pointed black hat.

Little Aline Hays bemoaning the ceasing of department store deliveries in the Big City and staggering along under fire-trucks, tricycles, and what have you, and wondering why it is that everyone scoffs whenever she has anything nice to say about her new home in San Marino.

Marcel protesting against a concerted accusation of ritziness, when she pulled out a svelte little packet of matches, monogrammed, if you please. Said she—"My dear, it's only that I parked my car in the Robinson lot, and when it came time to leave I didn't want to pay a parking fee—and there wasn't a thing in the whole store I wanted or needed—so I picked up a hundred of these little dookeys."

Audrey Zaiser, bewitching in a black velvet peaked hat with shell-hued velvet brim, blushing over a mispoken line in the Junior Ebell playlet. "I don't know why I called it the little girl's birthday party when it was a Christmas party," she said. "Must have been that post-natal influence."

To A. Tennyson from F. Briggs Okeh, my friend, accounts you there'll be no mo'nings at the bar. But surely you'll agree to afternoons and evenings that?

The lifting Mrs. Plum has finally once and for all put her house in order against the appearance of her spouse's sister and brother-in-law, the T. G. Elys of England. Expected early in the summer, the popular couple have only just sailed from Britain aboard the Queen Mary, and will proceed from New York to San Francisco for the Christmas holidays, and thence to the Islands, Japan, China, and home again. By the bye—their little son is at school at Exeter, and their young daughter is chumming with the offspring of Marlene Dietrich and Gertrude Lawrence at Lausanne, Switzerland. Hum.

Frank West and Jim Tucker were conspicuously absent at the Stanford-Cal Alum banquet. Well—it's been a long, hard, dry season. I judge. The former's little daughter Mary is, I hear, quarantined with whooping cough, and both little Eddie West, her small cousin, and tiny Edith Scripps are among those exposed. Danger period is almost over, however.

Speaking of the Eddie Wests, their new home at Flower and Nineteenth streets is progressing despite the rain, and they hope to be all settled by the first of March. The Eddie Holmeses on the other hand have postponed building on the wet weather is through. They've started out on the new dining-room furniture, though. I hear. And speaking of houses, the Bob Munros seem to be building a good bit of modernity into their comfortable South Broadway home, what with corner windows and such. And the cunning new home built by Pere Caskey for daughter Eiva Dean is now occupied by a new couple from Tacoma, the Neil Tibbess. And Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Geoghegan, Jr., are nesting down at Balboa Island for the winter after a happy honeymoon.

Young Charles Hardy, whose middle name is as yet unannounced, but who, it is vouchsafed by his beaming father of one day, weighs seven and one-half pounds, has a natural godmother in Virginia Hearn, on whose birthday anniversary he made his appearance at St. Joseph's. The Hearn (Virginia and the famous "Doc" of football fame) are acquiring smart nursery appointments these days, along with many others.

Among sparkling and delightful hostesses of the week was Nan Mead Curran, looking becomingly plump and pretty.

Interesting facts picked up here and there included the information from vivid and expectant little Vi (Mrs. Keller, jr.) Watson that she and her identical-twin sister Virginia had both had little girls the same day, weighing exactly the same. And right next to her, by chance, at the same party, was a trim, glowing little red-head named Mrs. Don Marsh of Orange, whose little daughters, she said, were born unalike, and now are noted for a little what-for for their favorite sport of skiing. (George Spielman is probably praying for the same act of God, judging by his window display at Rankin's this week.)

The Milan Millers, the Braden Finches, the Calvin Flints and the Wendell Finleys all set for a rainy week-end at Laguna. Others, including the Bob Wases, are sitting at home by the fireside, hoping that the precipitation will bring their little what-for for their favorite sport of skiing. (George Spielman is probably praying for the same act of God, judging by his window display at Rankin's this week.)

On the sick list we remember particularly never-give-up Marie Timmons, who is valiantly fighting the flu—and young Matt Nisson, battling against pneumonia at the hospital—and Frances Fernandez, feeling better again after her long and painful attack of pleurisy—and Mrs. A. G. Flagg, almost herself again after a long breakdown, and now entertaining a pretty niece and nephew-in-law from the

Plumb Home Country Club Opened to Section

The charming Tustin home of Mrs. Hugh Plumb was setting yesterday afternoon for a combined book review and Christmas party of the Modern Literature section of Ebell.

Mrs. M. B. Wellington provided the program for the afternoon, reviewing Wilkins' book, "And So Victoria." Plans were made for the January meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. George Dunton, with Mrs. Harold Segerstrom and Mrs. Earl Abbey as co-hostesses.

Tea was served to the group at a table gay with Christmas decorations, including an unusual aluminum Christmas tree made by Mrs. L. D. Coffing. Red carnations in attractive containers and red tapers added to the effect. Hostesses for the affair to aid Mrs. Plumb were Mrs. Clarence Gustlin, Mrs. L. D. Coffing and Mrs. R. C. Korff.

Three guests, Mrs. Pearl Merrick, Mrs. Robert Alexander, and Mrs. Milton McMurray, were entertained at the party. Members present were the Mesdames Earl Abbey, Dexter Ball, L. D. Coffing, Ellis C. Diehl, Clarence Gustlin, Brad Hellis, R. C. Korff, Herbert Miller, Lynn Osterander, Cassius Paul, Hugh Plumb, Harold Segerstrom, Horace Stevens, R. H. Sutherland, J. B. Tucker, Milo Tedstrom, M. B. Wellington and Hubert Nall.

NON-RESIDENT STUDENTS START TREK HOME

With the Christmas holiday season approaching, many of the 117 out-of-state Santa Ana Junior college students left for their homes late yesterday and early this morning.

Iolene Schmidt and Mary Jane Woodcock were the first to leave today, driving for their homes in Miami and Flagstaff, Ariz.

One of the most unusual modes of departure was taken by Elmer Meyer, sophomore, who started hitch-hiking in the rain yesterday noon in order to spend the holidays with his parents in Westgate, Iowa.

Five men who left in one car last night included Les Meyer, Greeley, Colo.; Jim Scheurich, Imperial, Neb.; Max Galusha, Royal Connell, and Baine Ashley, all going to Fort Morgan, Colo.

Walker and Gregg Davis left yesterday afternoon from the college for their home in Idaho Falls, Idaho. Jack Klein, Austin, Texas; Carolyn Ryan, Brigham, Utah; Dick Tauber, Ellsworth, Kan., and Ed Carnett, Tulsa, Okla., have tentative plans and are arranging to leave before or at the end of the week.

MRS. SPENCER IS HOSTESS TO CLUB

Mrs. Harry Spencer was hostess to members of her Needlework club on Friday afternoon in her home, 2351 North Park boulevard, utilizing lovely brilliant holly berries to decorate her house and table for the dessert course.

Those who enjoyed an afternoon of chatting and sewing included Mrs. F. W. Wiesemann, Mrs. L. A. West, Mrs. J. Dick Wilson, Mrs. Oliver Halsell, Mrs. H. J. Forgy, Mrs. Jean Metzger, Mrs. W. B. Williams, Mrs. Alex Brownridge, Mrs. O. H. Barr, Mrs. Helen Heil, with C. J. Skirvin, Mrs. Terry Stephenson, Mrs. E. B. Sprague and the hostess.

MRS. PRITCHARD IN LOS ANGELES

Mrs. Charles L. Pritchard, 2118 Greenleaf street, has been making a short visit with her sister, Mrs. Olive Walsh in Los Angeles for the past two days. Mrs. Pritchard will go to Los Angeles to home time this evening.

The Pritchards have had word from their son Donald in Principia college that he will spend the Yuletide holidays with his paternal aunt, Mrs. Hugh Frazer, and grandfather, W. O. Pritchard, in Fond du Lac, Wis.

east—and Frances Waldron, much improved after a major operation—and little Barbara Davis, now one week minus an appendix—ditto Eloise Revill.

Tea-ing off in fine style this week, I hear, is Kay Farwell, who is giving a modest little affair for 300 or so in conjunction with her mother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Lyman and Mrs. Byron Farwell in Los Angeles.

It was nice to glimpse lovely Mary Esch (now Mrs. Arthur Stead) in town the other day. She was shopping for furnishings for their new home at Laguna.

Eclipse of R. Colman Dear Mrs. Finley— Pictures of your idol in the theater foyer. Rouse my pulse but thinly. Now that I've seen Boyer. See you next Saturday, everybody. BETTY GUILD.

Country Club Activities Continue

A smaller attendance than usual because of the many interwoven activities of the holiday season nevertheless resulted in a very charming and intimate grouping at the monthly evening bridge party held last night at the Santa Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Holles and Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Flagg proved to be gracious hosts and hostesses in serving a late buffet supper from a long table decorated with rust and yellow tapers and pom-pom dahlias.

High score prizes went to Mrs. Herbert Miller, Mrs. Hugh J. Lowe, Roy Langley and A. G. Flagg, while lucky prizes were won by Mrs. George Parker and Herbert Miller.

Announcement was made of tomorrow's regular buffet supper at half past five, at which time Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Guthrie and Mr. and Mrs. Philip McKiver will be hosts and hostesses. The afternoon bridge tea will be held next Friday, with committees to be announced later.

PARTY GIVEN FOR EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

Because little Miss Ruby Jane Abernathy was eight years old this week, she was hostess on Tuesday at a pretty little party in her home, 1515 Orange avenue, celebrating that event.

Sixteen little guests were present for the affair and played various games before being seated at small tables for a game of cootie. High score went to Caroline Abernathy and low to JoAnn Underwood and both received lovely prizes.

Christmas provided an appropriate motif, with all the rooms decorated in gay colors. A bright Christmas tree centered the refreshment table, beneath a canopy of red and green streamers with balloons clustered in the center. Lighted tapers also decorated the table.

At each place were miniature Santa Claus figures as favors for the children, and each received a toy in addition. Center of interest at the table was a large birthday cake trimmed in pink and green.

Mrs. Charles Abernathy was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Lydia Kile, Mrs. Ray Underwood and Mrs. Verl Underwood. Those in the party were Mrs. Raymond Underwood with Marjorie Dawn and Louis, Mrs. Roland Weir with Rose Mary and Helen Louise of Anaheim, Mrs. Verl Underwood and JoAnn, Doris Marie Ragan, Edith Love, Leona Stasun, Mrs. Curtis Pearson and son, Willard, JoAnn Walworth, Patty Cronhardt, Ethyl Hazen, Maxine Burgess, Mrs. Cap Nelson and Ruth, Mrs. Lydia Kile, Mrs. Charles H. Abernathy with Ruby Jane and Catherine.

MRS. SMILEY IS HOSTESS AT LOVELY TEA

A lovely tea was given at the home of Mrs. Donald Smiley, Loma Solano Terrace, Friday afternoon, honoring former members of the Alice Lewis guild, a group organized to assist Mrs. Alice Lewis, a missionary to China, and school mate of Mrs. Smiley.

The occasion served to bring the latest news from Mrs. Lewis, who has been stationed in Canton, and when the last letter was written, had been ordered to Shanghai for the duration of the war. She described several air raids, observed from the balcony of her home in Canton, with her young son and daughter by her side.

Each of the members of the guild was presented a handkerchief sent by Mrs. Lewis from China. Games and tea closed the program of the afternoon. Mrs. Smiley served from a tea table covered with a Madras cloth, centered with red tapers and berries.

Guests were Mesdames Robert B. McAulay, Vern O. Estes, Earl Wood, Edwin Westcott, E. C. Frevert, L. R. Doncaster, Carl Plister, Oliver Wickschmidt, Ethel Clark, J. W. Powell and Miss Edna Case of Orange, Mrs. John J. Vernon, Santa Ana.

MRS. JOHNSON IS HOSTESS

Gay bouquets of red blossoms and red tapers suggested the holiday season when Mrs. A. F. Johnson, 517 Beverly Place, entertained her bridge club Thursday afternoon, serving a dessert course before the afternoon's play.

First and second prizes went to Mrs. John J. Vernon, and Mrs. P. G. Kilburn. Others present were Mrs. George Palmer, Mrs. C. F. Leithoff, Mrs. William Wollaston, Mrs. Frank Patrick, and Mrs. Curtis Allen, who will entertain the group Jan. 13.

QUILL PEN CLUB

In a change of meeting place since their last session, members of the Quill Pen club will meet with Mrs. Frank W. in her home, 617 Orange avenue, at 7:45 p. m., Monday.

Pan Hellenic Planners

Pan Hellenic society's annual Yule ball is always a highlight of the winter season. Busily assisting the chairman Reva Hawkins, is Miss Helen Kennedy at the left.

FORMER SANTA ANAN FETED AT SHOWER

Mrs. Harold Breeding of Pasadena, who was well-known in Santa Ana as Lucille Mitchell, was the honor guest last evening when the former members of the Santa Ana Club of the Confederacy, the group enjoyed a most interesting session Thursday in the home of Miss Louise and Miss Gertrude Montgomery, 1418 North Main street.

Miss Gertrude Mink and Mrs. Ruth Travers acted as gracious hostesses, planning an evening of bridge. They awarded prizes to Mrs. Harold King for high score and to Mrs. Harold Harvey for consolation. Preceding the serving of refreshments, lovely gifts were piled on a table, centered with pink roses and tall lighted white candles, for the honor guest.

Guests were Miss Georgia Green, Mrs. Mary Belle Adams, Mrs. Mary Jo Nelson, Mrs. Lester Thompson, all of Fullerton; Mrs. Bud Whitman, Anaheim; Mrs. George Charleston, Brea; Mrs. William Feldner, Mrs. Kenneth Chandler, Mrs. Henry Mitchell of Orange; Mrs. Elizabeth Millen, Miss Thelma Leonard, Mrs. Harold Harvey, Mrs. Ruth Riley and Mrs. Harold King of Santa Ana, and the guest of honor.

COMUS CLUB TO DANCE THURSDAY

Annual Christmas festivities will be celebrated Thursday, Dec. 16 by members of the Comus club when they gather at the Orange American Legion hall for a gay dancing party.

Each couple has been asked to bring two ten-cent toys which will be distributed by an authentic Santa Claus. Hosts and hostesses for the Yule affair are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. John Cannon, Dr. and Mrs. L. N. Sheppard, and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dickey.

MONTGOMERY HOME SCENE OF U. D. C. SESSION

Even though a change was necessitated in the meeting place for the December meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy, the group enjoyed a most interesting session Thursday in the home of Miss Louise and Miss Gertrude Montgomery, 1418 North Main street.

The Montgomery home was lovely in its appropriate decorations of holly and shining Christmas tree. The entrance of a real Santa Claus was occasion for much gaiety for he had in his pack a gift for all present.

Mrs. William Bates of Yorba Linda conducted the business period, which was followed by an interesting program. Mrs. T. J. Haughton read a selection on the "South in 1862." Little Miss Mary Beth Haughton gave an effective performance of "The Night Before Christmas," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Holly Lash Visek.

Highlight of the program was a review of appropriate gift books for Christmas by Mrs. Robert Northcross. Completing the affair, the group sang Christmas carols with Miss Audrey Harrell at the piano.

GIVE PLEASANT SOCIAL AFFAIR

Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips, of 2030 Evergreen street, entertained at a pleasant little party in their home this week, serving a late refreshment course after an informal afternoon of cards and conversation.

Miss Bertha Crouse assisted Mrs. Phillips, and others present were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Halloway, Miss Lois Halloway, Mrs. F. Towns and little David Towns, Mrs. A. Williams, and Mrs. B. Russell.

Landis-Liebig Party Has Charm

Smart simplicity characterized a luncheon given yesterday afternoon by two popular hostesses, Mrs. I. F. Landis and Mrs. J. E. Liebig, in the ever-hospitable home of Mrs. Liebig at 820 Spurgeon street. The party is one of a group that both have planned during the winter season, together and singly, launched two weeks ago with a formal dinner party given by Lieut.-Commr. and Mrs. Landis and Mrs. Marguerite Borgmeyer at the Pacific Coast club.

Lovely blossoms of all sorts were used to center luncheon tables, and little green and white talleis marked the covers. High score prizes at the end of the party went to Mrs. Leonard G. Swales and Mrs. H. T. Dunning.

Guests of Mrs. Landis and Mrs. Liebig included Mrs. Don Andrews, Mrs. George Briggs, Mrs. Marguerite Borgmeyer, Mrs. J. H. Burns of Wichita, Mrs. A. J. Cruickshank, Mrs. Lloyd Chenoweth, Mrs. Ray Chandler, Mrs. Richard Couden, Mrs. C. V. Davis, Mrs. Paul Dinsmore, Mrs. H. T. Dunning.

Mrs. A. G. Flagg, Mrs. F. E. Farnsworth, Mrs. Sara J. Haddon, Mrs. E. H. Hall, Mrs. E. C. Holles, Mrs. C. H. Holles, Mrs. James Irvine, Mrs. Mark Lacy, Mrs. Earl S. Morrow, Mrs. Cotton Mather, Mrs. Lewis Moulton, Mrs. Sam Nau, Mrs. Charles O. Norton, Mrs. W. D. Ranney, Mrs. Parke S. Roper, Mrs. J. B. Roberts, Mrs. Anna Richards.

Mrs. Howard Rapp, Mrs. L. G. Swales, Mrs. Robert G. Tuthill, Mrs. Howard Timmons, Mrs. E. D. White, Mrs. W. E. Winslow, Mrs. M. A. Yarnell and Mrs. Rowland P. Yeagle.

MRS. POULSEN COMPLIMENTED WITH PARTY

Mrs. Marion Poulsen was graciously entertained last evening by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Poulsen, in their home, 1783 Shenadoah street, Los Angeles.

The occasion was Mrs. Poulsen's birthday anniversary and the Los Angeles couple opened their lovely home for the party, with several Santa Anans in attendance. An Italian dinner was served, and climaxed with the presentation of a large birthday cake. Decorations throughout the home were beautiful red and white carnations and maiden hair fern.

Those going from Santa Ana included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jessup, Jr., N. J. Penman, Miss Minnie Penman, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Bond, Miss Effie Penman and Leland Penman.

RIDING GROUP ENJOYS LUNCHEON

Determined to continue their sessions despite unfavorable weather, members of Ebell Riding section met yesterday, and lunched together later at the Doris-Kathryn tea room, concluding the afternoon with a session of bridge at the home of Mrs. Charles Spicer.

They made plans to hold a gymkhana late in March, and will meet next on Friday, Jan. 14, and after their regular ride will be served a buffet luncheon at the home of Mrs. Beary as co-hostess.

Present yesterday were Mrs. West, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Thorburn White, Mrs. E. F. Elstrom, Mrs. Gordon X. Richmond, Mrs. Chester Horton, Mrs. John Scripps, Miss Mildred Spicer, Mrs. Calvin Flint, and Mrs. Calvin Flint.

RANKIN EMPLOYEES HAVE MERRY PARTY

"Midst a setting of glittering silver and blue decorations, 80 Rankin Dry Goods store employees celebrated their annual Christmas party last night in the Y. W. C. A. rooms.

The group enjoyed a turkey dinner served early in the evening, following which they gathered in the Y. W. lounge where a Christmas tree had been decorated in bright-colored lights. Eddie Marble took the part of Santa Claus and distributed gifts to the merry crowd.

In charge of arranging the delightful event were Marie Fowler and Welcome Sievers, team captains, assisted by Mabel Coll, Ruth Stump, Ruth Slater, Jane Raney, and Edith Davidson. Joining the employees for the affair were J. H. Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rankin and Danny Rankin.

TO MEET MONDAY

The Santa Ana circle of the Child Preservation League of America will meet Monday evening, Dec. 13, at the Visek studios, 425 West First street, beginning at 7:45 p. m.

SOUTHEAST SECTION The Southeast section of the Ladies' aid of the First Presbyterian church will meet as usual Friday, Dec. 17, at 2 p. m., having abandoned plans for an evening party with husbands.

SUGAR BEET GROWERS MEET

Meeting of the sugar beet growers institute will be held at 10 a. m. next Thursday at the Farm Bureau building, 353 S. Main street, Orange, according to W. M. Cory, assistant farm advisor.

Speakers on the program will include: Charles Price, assistant agronomist, U. S. department of agriculture; L. D. Doneen, irrigation agronomist, University of California; Burle J. Jones, extension service; W. W. Robbins, University of California, and B. L. Smith, with the agricultural conservation program.

Drunk Driver Fined $150

A $150 drunk driving fine and $35 speeding fine highlighted yesterday's Santa Ana police court business. Fourteen motorists paid $1 fines.

LeRoy Jack Elliott, Glendale, made arrangements to pay a $150 drunk driving fine, and Willard J. Reinking, Long Beach, paid a $35 speeding fine.

Other speeding cases: William B. Sheppard, Santa Ana, $15; Richard H. Iahn, Santa Ana, $8; Clark W. Lindsey, Santa Ana, $8; Clarence J. Rambo, Santa Ana, $8.

Glenn McNe G. Welch, Santa

They must treat their necks to gay jewels of most fashionable shapes and colors—clips, beads and maybe very artistically placed eyeglasses on a chain. Their hands must be most delightfully manicured—and such things as gloves, handbags and shoes must be the smartest, nicest quality.

If the budget is low, the solution is just the same. The one well-cut frock or suit or coat may have to serve many seasons at times—but accessories there shall be! For the success is worked out through accessory detail!

FIFTH & PARTON STS.
We all greatly rejoice with Dr. O. Scott McFarland and the members of the Presbyterian church for their beautiful new edifice, which is being formally dedicated tomorrow. The Church of the Nazarene sends its congratulations to you, and our prayer is that many shall be blessed by the gospel of Christ

CORNERSTONE OF CHURCH TO BE LAID

Appropriate and impressive services have been scheduled tomorrow for the opening of the new First Presbyterian church, beginning with a first service commencing at 9 a. m., according to the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor.

The entire congregation of the church will meet on the corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets to participate in ceremonies for the placing of the cornerstone. The rites will begin with a call to worship by a trumpeter in the church tower, followed by singing of "The Sanctus" from Gaul's "Holy City" by the new cathedral choir of the church.

A. H. Allen, president of the board of trustees, and J. H. Rankin, senior elder of the church, will take part in the cornerstone laying. The actual sealing of the box will be done by Dr. Glenn W. Moore, executive secretary of the Los Angeles presbytery, and a close friend of the Rev. and Mrs. McFarland.

Following these rites, the congregation will form a procession headed by the pastor and church officers to enter the church. Appropriate litany will be read for the opening of the new sanctuary of worship, and the cathedral choir will come into the sanctuary in a procession. Following will be a service of worship including special music on the organ by Pauline Graag Rhoades, and anthems by the choir under the direction of Whitford L. Hall, musical director.

The second service, identical with the first, will begin at 10:45 a. m., with the exception of the cornerstone laying, and the procession. Both are open to the public, including members and friends of the church.

'The Messiah' Tops Xmas Service

Excerpts from Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," will be featured at Christmas services in the First Methodist church both tomorrow and next Sunday, according to an announcement of Halstead McCormac, musical director.

"And the Glory of the Lord," the opening chorus of the oratorio will be presented as an anthem tomorrow morning and other selections will be offered the following week. A special program of music has been planned for next Sunday's service.

Sermon on 'Miracle Of Birth' Planned

The Christmas series on the beginnings of Christianity now being conducted in the Unitarian church, Bush and Eighth streets, will be conducted tomorrow at 11 a. m. with a sermon on "The Miracle of Birth."

The Rev. Julia N. Budlong, pastor, will preach the second sermon, explaining why this element in primitive myth and rite continued into the new religion.

CO-PASTOR WELCOMED

Special pre-Christmas services are being arranged at the Four-square church, Fairview and Sycamore streets, for tomorrow, to be combined with a homecoming welcome for the Rev. Alice Ann Parham, co-pastor.

The Rev. Mrs. Parham will arrive home at 9:30 this evening from an extended evangelistic tour and will preach at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. services tomorrow. At the evening service, the Orange County Student orchestra, consisting of 125 pieces, will play an hour of sacred music from 7 to 8 p. m.

Other meetings of the week include a church banquet and reception for the Rev. Mrs. Parham at 6:30 p. m. Monday, and a musical program by the Rev. A. G. Wagner, pastor of the Good Year church of Los Angeles, and his 40-piece uniformed band.

22 Killed in Scotland Wreck

CASTLEBARY, Scotland. (AP)—At least 22 persons were killed today when the collision of two passenger trains on the main line of the railway between Glasgow and Edinburgh.

Rescuers had recovered that many bodies tonight. A raging snowstorm hampered the rescue work. Workers, digging through heavy snowdrifts, believed more bodies would be found in the wreckage.

SANTA ANA CHURCHES WELCOME YOU SERMONETTE

(ON THIS WEEK'S CHURCH SCHOOL LESSON)
By Glenn L. Thorne

A small boy who had been watching a blacksmith, asked him "How many anvils have you worn out?" The blacksmith, an old man said "Many hammers have been worn out, but the anvil is as good as ever."

When we consider the attacks that have been made on the Bible; the efforts that have been put forth to destroy it; the laws in many states barring it from the public schools (it is about the only book printed that teachers are forbidden to read to their classes); the attacks by infidels and skeptics for centuries; its being besieged openly by enemies on one hand and ambushed by wolves in sheep's clothing on the other—when we consider the hammers that have wasted themselves against it, while the Old Book remains, steady like a Gibraltar today, we stand in awe. And as we applaud the soldier who single-handed overcomes his enemies and comes forth victorious, so we, in reverence, applaud this Amazing Book.

In English, the authorized or King James version still stands at the head of the list for literary excellence. Through long use its phraseology has entwined itself so thoroughly into our speech and thinking, it in itself seems to carry a sense of sacredness and sublimity. It has been generations since "thou" has turned to "you" and "doest" to "do" yet we would miss these forms were they not there. Another vital reason for the persistence of this old version is that its language is that of the Golden Age of English literature—that of Milton and Shakespeare. As long as English shall endure as a language the glory of that age will linger. Other versions also have their value. The literary excellence of the Bible glows even through the matter-of-factness of our modern speech.

As literature, the Bible is more than a book. It is a library. Its variety is amazing. If one loves poetry, there are the Psalms and some of the prophets. For epic drama there is Job. If one prefers narrative prose there are both history and biography. What more entrancing story than that of Joseph? What romance more intriguing than that of Ruth? If oratory appeal, what could be more gripping than Judah's plea or Paul's defense? Just as a story, the life of Jesus has never had an equal. For logic and philosophy and practical ethics the epistles cannot be excelled.

Both youth and maturity find interest in this Book. The simple find understanding; the profound, unfathomable depths. Its riches have never been exhausted. Many are the masters of literary art who have come to it for inspiration and assistance. For example, Shakespeare's use of spiritual phraseology or allusions to the Scriptures runs into the hundreds, while over 700 Biblical references are to be found in Poe's writings. The Bible, which is said to be the first book ever printed stands as a peer among all other books from a literary standpoint alone.

Now consider the respect it commands! The very presence of this Book carries respect! So much that any girl can walk with a Bible exposed in her hand down the worst streets of any city and wicked men recognizing it, will respect it and protect her rather than molest her. Bibles placed in hotel rooms by The Gideons often show much use, yet unlike the phone book, seldom are they mutilated or used for scratch pads.

Our government so respects the Word that no man ever takes the oath that makes him President of the United States without the use of the Bible. When Chief Justice Taft administered the oath that made Calvin Coolidge President, at the conclusion of the oath Mr. Coolidge said, "So Help Me God" and lifted a small Bible, which his parents had given him as a small boy, and kissed it.

Textbooks for Our Children

School Superintendent Frank Henderson did a workmanlike and satisfying job in his public letter, printed Thursday in both Santa Ana newspapers, in which he answers, on behalf of the board of education, the pettifogging series of criticisms which have been directed against certain textbooks used by our schools.

The Journal feels that the shallowness, ignorance and bias on which the criticisms had been based was method-ically and completely exposed by Mr. Henderson's statement of the case. And we are not going to refrain from saying so simply because the criticisms emanated from the editor and publisher of a competing newspaper. There are times when journalistic ethics and common sense preclude one editor from indulging in "newspaper rows" with the editor down the street.

There are other occasions—of which this certainly is one—when the public interests demand frank and free discussion.

Mr. Hoiles for some time back has been bombarding the school administration with his criticisms, both through the medium of his newspaper and through, long, windy letters. Simultaneously, through his paper, he has been making clear that he is at heart an enemy of public education itself, except perhaps to a very limited degree for children of the lower grades.

Mr. Hoiles' principal phobia, of late, has centered about a group of textbooks dealing with social science.
These contain, says Mr. Henderson, a total of 3600 pages.
Mr. Hoiles' method of attack has been to cull isolated sentences here and there with which he disagrees, exaggerate their supposed meaning and connotation, and ignore completely the basic nature and substance of the books in question.

Actually, as Mr. Henderson makes clear, the Rugg texts profess, and ably seek to attain, this objective:

"In this book we are trying to help you to understand the world we live in today, and how that world became what it is. It is not only possible for you to understand many of the difficult problems of our new civilization; it is possible also for you to help in solving them. To do so, you should learn some of the important facts about the modern world. You should then form your opinion according to the facts you have learned. There is nothing more needed by America and the rest of the world today than citizens whose minds are open to the consideration of all the facts. Try, therefore, to keep an open mind about every problem that you study."

The Journal submits this is a sound basis of operation for any student, young or old. It is a sound basis, as well, for a newspaper's policy.

These particular books, adds Mr. Henderson, are used quite generally throughout the United States. In California, 35 counties and 85 cities have adopted them. Very properly, Mr. Henderson calls attention to the fact that among the places where they are studied in the schools are Lorain and Bucyrus, Ohio, two cities in which Mr.
Hoiles recently has operated newspapers and in one of which he still owns a newspaper. It is quite evident that his efforts to dictate educational policies have been as fruitless in those communities as they now prove to be here.

Certainly the whole question of what books should be used is one for educational authorities to pass upon. Mr.
Henderson's statement says, "We hold no brief for the Rugg books as such. There may be other and better ones.
Our teachers have not found them."

Then, very pointedly, this:

"The conclusion which we must reach in this matter is this: Any attempt in this series or any other to eliminate the specific discussions of modern conditions would be disastrous, not to the author of the books or the publishers, but to the schools in general.
For many years the textbooks in social science were colorless and lifeless, largely a tabulation of the facts of discovery, settlement, wars, and a prejudiced view of political matters. The books were oftentimes so inappropriate and so inaccurate that those used in the North were refused any acceptance in the South, and those of the South were equally unacceptable north of the Mason-Dixon line. Moreover, the authors tried to eliminate any treatment of controversial problems.

"That type of book can easily be secured again if the schools so desire. In fact, many such are now available; but if the textbook of today is to be full of life and to provide proper materials for a study of modern civilization, it is inevitable that it will often provoke controversy if it is so presented as to stir up thought.

"We desire to have the cooperation of the community and of the press. Indeed some measure of confidence is necessary if teachers are to be privileged to teach without constant fear of dictatorship. If and when the Rugg series is replaced it should be by the same procedure as followed in its adoption."

The "colorless and lifeless" type of book is obviously the one for which the heart of Mr. Hoiles yearns.
But The Journal does not believe that parents of our Santa Ana girls and boys do.

And this newspaper likewise believes, with Mr. Henderson and the board, that when and if we do adopt any different books, it be on the basis mentioned; namely, by a process of careful selection BY TEACHERS AND EXPERTS, and not in response to some fanatical dictatorship.

Landon will not run again, he says. In some quarters there is considerable doubt if he ever really ran.

FAIR Enough

RICH GUYS CAN'T WIN
IN THIS GAME

By Westbrook
Pegler

There was a poker game—two rich guys and four other guys. The four other guys didn't have any money to speak of, but the rich guys had to deal them in because you can't play two-handed poker, and it is no fun high-spading back and forth. The poor guys were necessary for a quorum.

So the house said, "We are going to have to rejigger the kitty in this game. If one of you rich guys wins a pot you have to kick back up to 80 per cent. Then we will use part of it to stake the poor guys when they run out of chips.
The rest of it we will use to pay for the sandwiches and beer and the porters and rent and the cops and all."

At first the rich guys thought this was fair enough. It was a nice, comfortable joint, and they had been doing all right.

But after a while they began to mutter about the kitty, and there came a terrible squawk when one of them took down a real big pot.
He reached for the pot, but just then the house said, "Hold on a minute, chum, till we figure this out. Let's see. Toontooz four and six-ten and eighths—eight is sixty-four, plus 30 per cent surtax and how about that stack of blues
I saw you stick into your side pocket? We will have to charge you 80 per cent penalty for that evasion."

"Evasion!" the guy yelled.
"What do you mean—evasion?"
That side pocket is my holding company. Get out the book. Get it out. Show me where it says you can't put your chips in your side pocket or your flask pocket or any pocket you want to. It's a free country."

"Makes no never-mind about a free country," the house said. "We got to take care of these poor guys or you won't have no poker game. It will just bust up in a fight, and you will be lucky you don't lose your pants. And the sandwiches and beer and heat and light and the ice bill and all.
Listen. You guys get as much sandwiches and beer and heat and light as anybody else."

"Sandwiches and beer is all right," the rich guy says, "but how about all this caviar and champagne, you are slopping around, and anyway the joint is overheated and the lights are bright. It hurts my eyes. You are wasting a lot of dough."

"Oh, shut up," one of the poor guys said, "or we will dump you mugs down the dumbwaiter and take over and run some other kind of game. We will deal blackjack just among ourselves and with your dough."

"You and who else?" the rich guy said.
"Me and my pals here," the poor guy said, and with that he made a pass at the rich guy, who yelled to the house, "Hey! Give a look.
Can't you keep order in the joint?
Why don't you hire some more bouncers with all that kitty you are squandering around for caviar and wine and statues in the hallway?"

"But, listen," the other rich guy said to the house, "I've got a right guy. I'm all for your idea of stating these mugs out of the kitty to keep the game going, but put yourself in my place. Here I risk a whole hatful of chips and play my cards right while these dope are raising on the draw to inside straights and bottled flushes, and when I win a pot you are right there with that big mitt.
How about if it comes a time when I can't win for losing three or four times around, you are killing my initiative and enterprise acting like this. Why should I toss in eight inches of my good, hard-earned blues to win a couple of lousy little whites?"

The poor guys laughed out loud at the mention of "hard-earned" blues, and the house, who was kind of tough, said "economic royalist" and "well-fed chubman," and called for a new deal. The rich guys got pretty sick of the term "new deal."

ALWAYS BROKE
But the house began to notice that "no matter how much kitty the poor guys got they were always broke. One poor guy proposed dividing up all the dough equally and another had some shtetl to let the poor guys go shy and take down the amount they were shy, even if they lost.

Then, in the hope of stimulating the game, the house just abandoned the regular rules and began to deal a lot of crazy games like sen-toed Pete and high-low with the red sevens and the one-eyed jacks wild.

"This ain't poker," one of the rich guys said finally. "This ain't even rummy or casino or anything.
Cash me in. I'm going to quit."

At this the four poor guys shoved back their chairs, grabbed pool cues and headed for the door, but the house reached for the rich guys pile and began to count up.
"Set down! Set down!" the house said to the poor guys. "If he wants to cash in he can cash in.
But when a rich guy cashes in he take down 60 or 80 per cent, ac-

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Growing Jap menace in China hastened Roosevelt's return from South; Britain, too late, follows Hull's urging to send fleet to Far East; Garner's happy now; he finds a man who can cook greens and hogwail;
Hague, Jersey boss, sues to end CIO war as La Follette probe looms.

WASHINGTON.—Inner White House advisors admit there was a lot more to Roosevelt's sudden return from Gulf waters to Washington than a sore jaw.

Extremely disconcerting reports were sent to him in Florida regarding the situation in the Far East. They gave confidential details of increasing Japanese highhandedness and penetration into Southern China. But the principal reason for Roosevelt's worry is that it looks as if Chiang-Kai-shek is collapsing. He is running out of munitions. If he folds up, there is the historical fear that China will sell out to Japan.

Simultaneously in London, French and British diplomats have come nearer a plan of joint action in the Far East than ever before.
The British finally have agreed to send additional ships to Far Eastern waters, while the French already have sent six fast cruisers and have promised to send 20 submarines later. The British, however, will not send their ships for several weeks, some of their battleships still being in dry-dock for modernization.

LOCKED CHINA DOOR
The importance of this change can be realized only if contrasted with last summer's conversations between the British and Mr. Hull.
In August the secretary of state did everything in his power to persuade the British to send a squadron to Singapore. He argued that this, together with the dispatch of the United States fleet to Hawaii, would be quite sufficient to stop the Japanese.

Neither fleet would have to move further than these two bases, he maintained. The Japanese would immediately back-track. Naval strategists agreed with Mr.
Hull. However, the British would not budge. They said the menace of Mussolini in the Mediterranean was too great. They refused to move a single ship.

Present change of policy results from three things:
1. British rearmament, especially along naval lines, has made progress.
2. The British and French, united by a stronger agreement than before, feel there is a better chance for security in Europe.
This, they believe, will permit them to transfer ships from European waters.
3. Important British interests in Shanghai and along the Yangtze have been seized by the Japanese or seriously jeopardized. The British now have reached the conclusion that Nippon plans to squeeze out all other foreigners.

So now that the Japanese have bitten off about half of China, the British seek to lock the stable door.

JUSTICE BLACK
One of Washington's popular young newsmen is Joseph W. Alsop, a distant relative to both clans of the Roosevelt family.

As a senate newspaperman, he became a warm admirer of Justice Hugo Black and when the furore broke over the latter's klan membership, Alsop went to his defense.

Whereupon his cousin Mrs.
Alice Roosevelt Longworth, called up to ask Alsop what he meant by defending a klanman.

"Joe," she said, "you are just a dove in a kleagle's nest."
But Garner's troubles now are over. He has discovered a kindred spirit who not only loves greens-and-hogwail but knows how to make it.

He is Missouri's senator Bennett Clark.
Overhearing Garner longingly voice a desire for a "mess of greens," Clark went to a farmer's market, bought mustard, kale, turnip tops and dandelion greens, cleaned them thoroughly and cooked them with a big hogwail.

Next day he presented the overjoyed Garner with a large portion.

Mrs. Garner immediately sent it to the senate restaurant to be warmed, after which the vice president, beaming like a boy with a new bicycle, had it served with corn bread and buttermilk in his private office off the senate.

"Bennett," he exclaimed at the conclusion of the feast, "you are not only a fine gentleman but a great cook. I love you."

NOTE—Another favorite vice presidential dish is chittlings. Garner and the late Senator Joe Robinson frequently gorged on chitlings in Garner's sanctum.

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in these imaginary to be public opinion, is our ruler. If public opinion is active, the politicians and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent fair discussion of our problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag.

DIDN'T LIKE STORY

To the Editor: I have just finished reading The Journal for Dec.
9 in which there is an article by Bob Guild about the death curse over the anthropological project.

I have told Mr. Guild, and I want to tell you, that in my opinion, much of that story was in very poor taste. When he questioned the people on the project, they, relying on his promise not to use the names of deceased people and to treat the story in a dignified manner, went out of their way to give him information, even pictures. All the people on the project whom I have seen are upset.

The thing which distresses me most is the reference to the deaths of two of the people on this project.
I think one, especially, which is less than two weeks ago. Such statements must necessarily cause considerable suffering and heartache to recently bereaved families; and for no purpose except to make a good story, and I grant you that the story is cleverly written.

I have tried in every way possible to give the newspapers all the news that we have and it was thoroughly understood that stories about this project should be submitted to us for correction of facts first.

In addition to the bad taste which I have already mentioned, there are several statements which are absolutely untrue. This would not make any difference in ordinary circumstances, but headlined as this story is should have been checked for accuracy.

I presume it is entirely too late now to do anything about it, but, as I said, I vigorously protested to Mr. Guild, and I do so to you.
In a small community as we are,
I cannot see where a cleverly written story is worth the suffering and heartache which it is likely to result from this one.

W. W. WIEMAN, Principal Lathrop Evening High School.

(Editor's note: The Journal has no agreement with anyone to submit stories in advance of publication. Mr.
Guild, the reporter who wrote the story, says he made no promise to withhold names. If Mr. Wieman will point out any inaccuracies in the story,
The Journal will be glad to apologize and correct them.)

A PLEASURE

To the Editor: The Epworth League of the First Methodist church wishes me to thank you for the notice in which you helped us advertise the Swiss yodelers who entertained us on the evening of Nov. 28.

We feel that the capacity crowd that filled the auditorium that evening was due in a large part to the help you rendered us. We thank you again for the help which made such a successful program possible.

EPWORTH LEAGUE,
FIRST METHODIST.

HONESTY

Santa Ana yesterday afternoon.
An old man walking up Main street in the 800 block felt his pocket knife drop to his foot.

An investigation showed a worn hole in his pocket through which some loose change had also dropped.
But as he was about to pick it up, a doctor and was a little late,
he did not turn back.

Then he heard hurried footsteps behind him and a woman calling.
"Oh, Mr. Man." On turning back to see if the call was to him, a woman stepped up and handed him a quarter saying she had seen it fall. He thanked her and explained how it happened.

After he crossed the street a boy came up and handed him a quarter, saying he had seen it fall.
The old man would have liked to have handed the boy back the quarter but did not have nerve enough because the boy did not look like the kind of a boy who would have liked that type of reception to his courtesy. Above are the facts for I was the old man.

CHAS. B. CLARK.

I hate to keep complaining, but my right wrist is throbbing great guns. That's from the humming of the tremolo effects. Also my tongue feels all swollen and ragged at the edges. For pity sake, look at it in the mirror. It suggests a gob of raw hamburger. And it may be because of a poor light, but it appears as though I've blown out my left tonsil. Start out to blow
a few gentle arias on the harmonica and wind up looking like a tough day at the slaughter house.

Larry Adler cannot only have his harmonica, but his crown all done up in cellophane with cute red ribbon bows. Anyway a harmonica is just a mouth organ that any ten-year-old can play. Blowing and slobbering around to make a little music. Whatever got into me anyway?

SHREWD

"No lettuce on that sandwich."
Smitty warned the soda fountain dispenser as he gave his noontime order.

"Don't you like lettuce?" quired his pal, Jonsey.

"It's not that," came the explanation, "but there's method in my madness. You see, when the sandwich man puts lettuce between the two slices of bread, it looks pretty thick. But when he doesn't, the sandwich looks so skinny that he puts more meat in it to build it up. Clever, eh?"

"Yeah, and I suppose you ask for all W's and M's in your alphabet soup."—Montreal Star.

WHIMSIES

DAY
BY DAY With
O. O.
McINTYRE

NEW YORK—This seems a good day to add to the Yuletide cheer with a few arpeggios from the harmonica Larry Adler sent over from London. My wife seems to think that every time I practise I'll get caught up in the chromatic lever and emerge with a hare-lip or something.

That's because the first day I had it I huffed and puffed the lining off my upper plate. Too ambitious, I was. Starting off with Ravel's Bolero. Today I'll take off with something sweet and low, "Goodnight Sweetheart," for instance. (Voice: Sex sneaking in!)

Notice how clearly I tootle the first note. The technique is to cover four holes with your mouth, the three to your left with your tongue and blow into the fourth.

And for that wah-wah tremolo, you simply jiggle your cupula hand. Anyway it beats the zither.
If I keep on as good as this I'll probably be making a debut at the Metropolitan. Maybe Lucius Beebe will loan me his purple-tinted dress suit for the triumph.
Can't you see me being led to the Whitney box while the vast audience stands and cheers! Ah, the wasted column inches!

And young Larry Adler. Just a broth of a boy. Little did he wot in sending me this harmonica named for him that he was bringing on professional eclipse. All over London his posters read—King of the Harmonica! And now another King has lost his crown. Little did he know that a King today and just one of the crowd tomorrow. But he must be brave. Chin up and cheer. Hawkins, my three-stud black pearls and Lady Dinwiddie's cigaret case. The one with the green jade edgings, we must be gay!

It is tough to detour a young fellow at the peak of his career, but I cannot let mawkish sentimentality stand in the way. After all, my public is first. I better unhook my collar. Blowing this way I'm beginning to heave a mile. You can't expect a fellow leading a sedentary life to be long-winded. There are many novices on the harmonica who blow themselves blue-eyed before they even master "Over the Waves." The proper way is to take things easy. After all, about all there is to this racket is inhaling, exhaling, swaying a bit and rolling the eyes. Also glance at my foot work. How on a high note I rise gently on the balls of my feet. Neat, eh what!

I might as well switch to something heavier. A number with a few trills and a lingering cadenza or so. Then on to the quick stuff, such as those up-and-down scales in the Rhapsody in Blue. From one end of the harmonica to the other in lightning slides. Nice going over. Puffing a little to be sure, but what would you expect.
Now for Pop Goes the Weasel, triple time.

Don't look now, but I think I'm bleeding in the corners of the mouth. Nothing to worry about.
Art is often a cruel matter. But no "Dying Egypt Dying" stuff for me. How glorious the quality called courage. See I'm smiling.
There's no cause for alarm.
Everybody keeps their seats. I assure I'll be all right. I'm perfectly dandy. This dizziness will pass. I've swayed worse than this lots of times without blowing a harmonica and got home all right.
Just a blown-out fuse on a high note. I suppose. Hear the bells ring and is this room spinning!
I'm glad nobody sent me a French horn.

I hate to keep complaining, but my right wrist is throbbing great guns. That's from the humming of
the tremolo effects. Also my tongue
feels all swollen and ragged at the edges. For pity sake, look at it in the mirror. It suggests a gob of raw hamburger. And it may be because of a poor light, but it appears as though I've blown out
my left tonsil. Start out to blow
a few gentle arias on the harmonica and wind up looking like a tough day at the slaughter house.
